U. S. Spotlight on Illinois Vote Tomorrow

ANTI-VOLSTEAD CRISIS CENTERS IN SENATE FIGHT

Dry League Plays Jekyll-Hyde Role.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
The stage is all set again for the next American election drama. The odds are to decide at the ballot box now whether the Republicans or the Democrats are to dominate Congress in the last two years of President Coolidge's term.

And what that congress does under such domination is going to make and break candidates for President, perhaps the candidacy of Mr. Coolidge himself for another term, and largely determine whether the Republicans or the Democrats, the wets or the drys, are to carry the presidential election of 1928.

So the balloting on Tuesday is fraught with aspects and considerations that are intensely dramatic and a great moment to the American people. The drama unfolds itself in a series of more exciting scenes wherein the great parties, nearly everywhere torn asunder by the reactionaries and Volsteadists, struggle desperately over the election of United States senators.

Right on Illinois and N. Y.

Two of the states in which the conflict upon them are New York and Illinois, where the conflict between the forces deep down in the soul of man has reached its highest pitch. There one finds the action of that political drama most thrilling.

With these great states the people are to proclaim by referendum whether they are satisfied with the conditions produced by the unsuccessful efforts to enforce bone dry prohibition, or desire to relax the rigor of the Volstead act by permitting individual states so desirous to allow the use of light wine and beer that is now in fact and therefore make the limitation of the eighteenth amendment.

A Crisis in the Wet Battle.
If the referendum carries in either of these states the modification movement will be given tremendous impetus. If the vote is adverse, however, in winning wet, New York, the modificationists will sustain a staggering blow.

In the New York and Illinois scenes the drama of the Anti-Saloon league is a leading part, though playing out much of the antisemitism of the past. In New York the league plays dry, in Illinois Mr. Hyde.

In New York the league is all for principle, whatever the consequences. With Wadsworth, the Republican candidate for senator, wet, Wagner, his Democratic opponent, stays policeman, is slain. Page 25.

URGES CHICAGO TO USE BALLOT AND WIN RIGHTS

Wade Points Way to Force Redistricting.

"We have respectfully waited for 16 years and have humbly begged, courteously petitioned, and logically argued, during that entire period for our right to fair representation in the state assembly under the state constitution—and we are still empty handed. We do not even have a promise of fair treatment. The time for action has come."

That is one of the pithy declarations of Will H. Wade, chairman of membership committee of the Illinois Athletic club. He believes that decided progress can be made tomorrow in obtaining equitable representation and gave an unusual interview in which he advances a new viewpoint and method of gaining results.

"Cook county is denied the representation which the Illinois constitution says the legislators must give it," he went on. "The state Supreme court has refused a mandamus to compel the legislators to do the duty which each member took an oath to perform: we appear to be without any remedy; but we are not."

Proposes a Remedy.

"The state has not been reapportioned, as the state constitution specifically guarantees, because influences which dominate and control the legislature have decreed that it shall not be done."

"One of these influences consists of the downstate political leaders.

"On election day these politicians are very thoughtful of Cook county citizens. But during the other 364 days of the year they deprive us of our just representation in the legislature, the United States congress, and in any proposed constitutional convention. They have been a hindrance to our progress."

W. H. Wade Says Chicago Can Force Remapping.

additional congressmen under the present apportionment. We would thereby have a larger voice in getting the improvements which Chicago and Cook county needs.

Supreme Court an Example.

The state Supreme court consists of seven judges, elected from seven judicial districts. The seventh district consists of Cook, Lake, Kankakee, Du Page and Will counties. Those counties with a population in 1920 of 205,000 more than half of the state, have one member of the state Supreme court bench, while the remainder of the state has six members.

These conditions exist because Cook county does not have its constitutional representation in the general assembly. If they continue, Cook county will be denied its constitutional representation in the next constitutional convention to draft a basic law for the commonwealth.

Tuesday offers an opportunity to jolt the down state politicians. If Cook county lines up almost solidly against Mr. Smith, the down state political bosses will take notice. That is one effective way to obtain our constitutional representation, which Mr. Brennan stands for."

FIRST NOTICES IN ARMY-NAVY TICKET SALE ARE SENT OUT

75 IN U. S. TAXED ON INCOME OVER MILLION FOR 1924

First notices to the 46,000 lucky Chicagoans who will be permitted to buy tickets to the Army-Navy football game on Nov. 27 were put in the mails yesterday by clerks of the South Park board, it was announced by President Edward J. Kelly.

But that doesn't mean that we shall get all of them mailed at once," Mr. Kelly said, "and those who expect notices and do not get them on Monday had best hold their worries until a week passes, for then, take us now, they will be mailing them all out."

The notices tell the recipient that tickets have been reserved for him, and that he must mail the remittance prior to the tickets, using a certified check, a cashier's check, money or express orders, before Nov. 10. On that date distribution of the tickets themselves will begin. Half of the 40,000 tickets are $15 each, and the other half $10 each.

FIGHT IN STREET FOLLOWS PARTY; FOUR INJURED

Only the width of the street in the 7500 block on Wentworth avenue separated two lively Halloween celebrations at the home of John Croft, 7845 Wentworth, and the Italian ditta, directly opposite on the west side at the home of Salmedo Vallone, overflowed into the street and mingled. And there was a sound of revelry by night.

Police from the Gresham station answered a riot call a few minutes later to find about twenty men engaged in a battle royal in front of 7556 Wentworth.

When the smoke cleared away, William Croft, 17, West Garfield park, was found to have been gunshot wounded in the left foot; Frank McCullough, 7751 South Loomis street, had been shot in the left leg; Salmedo Vallone, the west side host, was nursing a fractured jaw, and Thomas Vallone's face and hands were a mass of cuts.

McCaullough is in the Bridewell hospital, the other wounded in the Auburn Park hospital, and the balance of the guests from the two parties are booked to appear in Grand Crossing court this morning on disorderly conduct charges.

Nobody knows how it all started. Stanley Roman, 23 years old, was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital yesterday, suffering from a stab wound inflicted by a Halloween reveler.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special]—More persons had large incomes during 1924 than in any year since great fortunes were made in the war period.

Tax returns of 1925 for incomes of 1924, an analysis of which was made public today by the internal revenue bureau, disclose that 75 persons had net incomes of more than $1,000,000.

This was up from 1919, when 141 persons reported earnings in excess of $1,000,000. The record number was in 1916, when the total was 204; in 1918, 67 persons reported incomes above $1,000,000; in 1919, 65; in 1920, 33; in 1921, 21; in 1922, 67, and in 1923, 74.

INCOMES EXCEED $100,000.

There were 5,715 persons with incomes in excess of $100,000 in 1924, as against 4,182 the previous year.

Of the 75 persons who earned more than $1,000,000 in 1924, 27 were in the class between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, 13 between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, 10 between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, four between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, three between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, and three in excess of $5,000,000.

The three persons with net incomes above $5,000,000 reported an aggregate of $27,355,319. Their aggregate tax was $11,600,205, nearly 40 per cent of their net income being paid to the government.

While the treasury seeks to conceal the identity of individual taxpayers, an analysis by states discloses that of the 75 persons reporting net incomes above $5,000,000, but under $10,000,000, 13 were from Michigan and one in New York. Presumably they were Henry Ford, Edsel Ford, and John D. Rockefeller Jr.

FOUR ABOVE $3,000,000.

Thirty-nine of the 75 persons with incomes above $1,000,000 resided in New York, 21 of them having incomes between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, five between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, nine between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, two between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, three between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, and one above $5,000,000. The four New Yorkers with income above $2,000,000 had an aggregate net income of $27,302,068, and paid a total tax of $9,375.

NORTHAMPTON PLANS PUBLIC RECEPTION TO COOLIGES TOMORROW

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 31.—[Special]—Plans for a public reception for President and Mrs. Coolidge, when they come home here to vote next Tuesday, were made today. Arriving about 9 a. m., President Coolidge will go at once to the polls to投 a ballot of the reception committee of twelve citizens. Then the first citizens of the land will visit their old home on Massasoit street where Mrs. Coolidge's mother, Mrs. Lemyra Goodhus, will be waiting.

At 10:30 o'clock, a public reception will be held in the high school hall which will last until the presidential party goes to the return train at 11:30.

RECEPTIONS

$82. Michigan had four tax payers with incomes above $1,000,000, their aggregate net income being $16,498,281, and their total tax $8,896,032.

Pennsylvania, where Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is reputed to be the largest tax payer, had one person with an income between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, and six others with incomes in excess of $1,000,000.

The largest income reported by any Illinois taxpayer was less than $400,000. Illinois had 47 persons with incomes above $100,000, but only four of them reported more than $250,000.

INCOMES EXCEED $100,000.

INSULL RETURNS FROM VACATION IN BOYHOOD HOME

Samuel Insull, public utility magnate, returned yesterday from a vacation of several weeks passed at Reading, England, near London, the scene of his boyhood. Mr. Insull left Chicago on Oct. 12, and had been before the Senate investigating committee to his contributions to the campaign fund of Frank L. Smith. Mr. Insull refused to discuss his trip or to comment on business conditions abroad.

Yeggs Escape Minus Loot as Cops Surround Plant

Twenty-five policemen from the Marquette station surrounded the plant of the Chicago Chero-Cola company, 1901-1907 West Roosevelt road, last night after it had been reported that five burglars were at work in the place. A crowd of several hundred gathered as the police, armed with shotguns and tear gas bombs, advanced to the attack. The expedition, however, arrived too late. The burglars had fled, taking with them the nickels in a telephone box.

INCENDIARY FIRE RUINS EVIDENCE AGAINST AIMEE

Photographs Destroyed in Newspaper Office.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 31.—[Special]—Photographic negatives, intended as exhibits in prosecution of the McPherson case, were burned in an incendiary fire in the photographic department of the Los Angeles Times, this morning.

Only three or four pieces of the Mc-Pherson case film escaped destruction. The fire consumed original negatives and prints, and additional pictures which had been taken or were awaiting use in the prosecution's endeavor to prove Mrs. McPherson's guilty of obstructing justice by the manufacture of false evidence.

The fire marked the seventh batch of McPherson case evidence which has disappeared by theft or destruction.

Grocery Orders Disappear.

The sequence of disappearances began with the loss of two grocery orders disappeared from the Los Angeles jury room last July 16, during the grand jury's secret investigation of the Rev. Mrs. McPherson's amazing story of having been kidnapped at a Los Angeles bathing beach and escaped in Mexico.

Three times after that the district attorney's office was robbed of letters considered vital prosecution documents.

The grocery lists were said to provide handwriting proof identifying the Rev. Mrs. McPherson as the woman who accompanied Kenneth Ormiston to Carmel, Cal.

After the original grocery slips disappeared, a woman grand juror was confronted by the district attorney and other members of the grand jury but denied she had thrown the grocery lists down a drain pipe.

It happened that before the lists disappeared a "Los Angeles Times" reporter had made a photographic negative of them in their original state and this was permitted to go in evidence.

After being admitted as evidence, Judge Samuel Blaikie last Friday returned the grocery order negative, which was the only legally accepted incriminating handwriting evidence, to City Editor L. D. Hotchkiss of the Los Angeles Times.

Hotchkiss had the negative and photo copies in his personal possession last night and they escaped the fire.

Refuse to See Reporters.

The Ormiston trunk is expected to arrive from New York tomorrow.

Mrs. McPherson would not see reporters today. In her sermon she called the Ormiston trunk a "frame-up," and said: "There always is the possibility that reporters who came to Angelus temple, or some woman who had access to my home, might have stolen some of my dresses."

Angelus temple choir leader presented Mrs. McPherson with $500 for her defense fund.

Holding up the check, Mrs. McPherson said it's a sum collected by the choir to help my defense fund, and kept a secret from me. May the Lord bless the choir.

According to a dispatch from Sydney, Australia, Mrs. Kenneth G. Ormiston intends to return to Los Angeles in January and sue for divorce.

"I will ask for my freedom from Mr. Ormiston on grounds of desertion," Mrs. Ormiston is quoted. "I do not know who he is, but I will give him the case."

"I will not mention Mrs. Aimee McPherson. I am not interested in her trouble."

Gifts for the Bride of Autumn!

How beautiful candlesticks are—any candlesticks—but these are particularly for those who are determined to stick to the Colonial, sterling silver, hand-hammered. $15.

No-idle hour! Crystal plates, they are too beautiful to be let off during any course. They have a stunning gold band and are 8 1/2 inches in diameter. $40 the dozen.

A Spanish vase was wired to make this unusual lamp. The body may be ivory, robin's egg blue, or rust color, with contrasting handles. The shade is parchment. Complete $20.

To protect your table, a silver trivet in a chased and pierced design, will hold a 15 inch platter. $10.

The little stand holds an English tea set, made bright with a charming bird and flower pattern. 23 pieces, $25. The stand itself, folds, has leatherette straps across the top, and will conveniently hold your suit case when you pack. $15.

ANYONE may, at any time, be elected to the state of matrimony and when such an election takes place, Ovington's is an ever ready haven to the friends of the successful candidate.

For, whether they invade the china shop or search through the silver, garner a lamp, a mirror or a chair—all to the end that the bride's home may sparkle—these gift-gathering friends will discover they have achieved a triumph without damaging too heavily their check book.

One of the oldest of metals is serving as one of the newest gifts. Witness this pewter pitcher. Pewter has a grain of silver, and it's easier to keep clean. Capacity, 2 quarts. $10.

The formal dinner commands a place plate, and what could be lovelier than these with their gay flowers and creamy background. The price of $35 a dozen is very little for plates of such beauty.

A charming little boudoir lamp. Four Dutch children in native costume form the base, which is 15 inches high. The umbrella shade is georgette and fringed with sparkling beads. Complete $50.

You have five chances at the hors d'oeuvre when they're served in this silver-and-crystal tray. With the center removed, you have a platter for chops or salad, 15 inches diameter. $15.

A fascinating little table proves its fascination in two ways, will hold a lamp on its surface and the newest books in its trough, walnut with Chinese garden scenes, in red, green and black. $20.

Venice sends such decorative glass. The compotier, for instance, with Dolphin stem, in colors of green or amber, stippled with gold, 9 inches high. $10.

Lovely flowers must have equally lovely holders, and this Italian pottery vase reaches them in beauty. In either green or yellow, 11 inches high. $5.

The lines of this tea set are unusually beautiful—and the price of $20 for 23 pieces is unusually low.

A set of green crystal, the goblets $8; a dozen champagne glasses, $15; sherbet, $15; wine, $12.

What bride will be lucky enough to acquire this dinner set of Royal Doulton. Its outlines are charming, and its colors brilliant, birds and sprays of flowers sketched in rainbow tints. Can you imagine a more wonderful wedding gift? service for twelve, 103 pieces $100, service for six, 85 pieces $60.

SALESMAN DIES, 2 GIRLS INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Driver Held; Intoxicated,
Police Assert.

Vernon Bassett Glick, 30 years old, 4909 Sheridan road, a salesman, was killed and two young women were seriously injured early yesterday when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into an abutment under the Northwestern railroad viaduct at Canal street and Washington boulevard.

The driver, Frank Hamilton, 25 years old, 4200 Diversey parkway, was uninjured. He was taken into custody by the police for the inquest. The women injured are Miss Lydia Lenz, 23 years old, 2970 Sheridan road, and Miss Beatrice Webb, 27 years old, of the same address. According to the police report the members of the party had been drinking.

Four Other Deaths in Day.

Glick's death and those of four other persons yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 74.

Thomas Grover Baker Jr., 9 years old, was killed when his father's automobile ran over him as it was being backed from the rear by the rest of their car at 41st and Diversey street. Both his father and his mother were in the car. It is believed that the lad tried to leap on the rear end of the machine as it left the garage.

Nels J. Peterson, 32 years old, 16090 Langley avenue, was fatally injured when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into a surface car at 113th street and Watt avenue. He died at the Pullman hospital. Herbert Gallagher, 10556 Indiana avenue, was seriously injured in the same accident.

Andie Manalis, 12 years old, 829 South Wood street, died at the county hospital of injuries suffered on Saturday when he was struck at Paulina and Taylor streets by a car driven by John McLeomar, 1841 West Taylor street.

South Hit by Auto Dies.

Charles Dananor, 25 years old, 661 West Madison street, died at the same institution of injuries suffered on Saturday. He was struck at Madison and Loomis streets by an automobile driven by John Boening, 4952 Alinslee street.

Two women were killed and two men were seriously injured when the car in which they were riding was struck at the Wabash crossing in East Chicago.

early yesterday by a passenger train. Mrs. Louis Mahoney, 27 years old, of Gary, and Mrs. Gertrude Leonard, 43 years old, of Gary, are the dead. Peter Cubitt, watchman at the crossing, was held by the police, who maintain that he was criminally negligent in failing to lower gates at the approach of the train.

Gary Youth Is Killed.

Louis Blimsky, 22 years old, of Gary, was killed when a motorcycle on which he was riding crashed into an automobile on the East Gary road. At Charlestown, Ill., Howard Ferguson was killed and three companions were injured when the car in which they were riding was driven into a concrete mixer.

PAIN QUARRELS; ONE SLAIN.

Ray L. Woods, colored, 441 East 42d street, was shot and killed yesterday evening at his home by James Barrie, colored. The man asserted over the ownership of a lemon squeezer. Barrie is being sought by the Wabash avenue police.

He Looks as She Bathes; She Yells; He's Captured

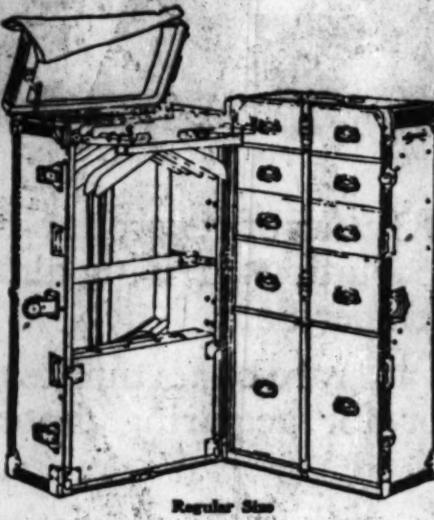

While Miss Dorothy Winters was taking a bath Saturday night at her home, 3710 Drexel boulevard, she heard some one moving about in her bedroom. She opened the bathroom door and peeped out. A man who, she said, was John Williams, a roomer in the same house, was walking out with her entire wardrobe. She yelled. The thief fled. An hour later Williams was arrested and despite his plea that he hadn't taken the young woman's garments, was held by the Hyde Park police.

FASHIONABLE FOOD

—is now the vogue among the fastidious women of America

DIT is interesting to note how the gentle sex today . . . discriminately selects food that preserves the fairness of their complexions . . . their boyish figures . . . their slim waist lines . . . their dainty ankles . . . and all other feminine traits of grace and beauty.

De Met's food is especially prepared to appeal to women who appreciate the importance of proper food as a boon to loveliness.

The many thousands of beautiful Misses and Matrons who frequent the De Met stores . . . delight in the appealing and appetizing menus that may be aptly characterized as FASHIONABLE FOOD.

TOMORROW'S ELECTION.

Some day this state may be fortunate enough to have a general election which does not find itself involved in a great scandal but that good fortune is not for this year and it probably will require considerable change in the personnel of Illinois politics before it is realized. If the state continues to give preference to men openly tarnished in politics there will be little encouragement for men who go right and no punishment for men who go wrong.

Elections not only offer the voters the opportunity to give direction to their government but they are accountings in which check is maintained on public conduct. Thus they create the political moral standards. These standards have not fared well in this state of late and they will fare still worse if sanction is given to the political procedure of Frank L. Smith, the Republican nominee for the United States senate. He was discovered in financial relations with the public utility companies he controlled as chairman of the Illinois commerce commission. His acceptance of campaign funds from corporations over which he had jurisdiction was completely vicious. It could not be tolerated by any body of citizens who expect anything decent from their government. If the state condones such acts it will have more of them.

There is no excuse for a vote for Smith. He is Republican and dry. Magill is Republican and dry, a better Republican and a better dry because his character is not stained and his record is clear. Brennan, the Democrat, will get the votes of voters to whom the great issue is the modification of the Volstead act and escape from the conditions which have grown up under prohibition.

The scandal is a dry scandal inasmuch as the Anti-Saloon league in the state has been trying to ignore the issue of political morals and to elect Smith. It thus has shown itself as a real enemy to the recovery of the state from government which has disgraced it. Luckily it has not carried all of its own membership along with it in this attempt.

Voters can vote their convictions as Republicans and as Democrats and as for and as against the Volstead act, but Republicans and drys cannot vote for Smith without stultifying themselves and disowning principles.

"YES" ON DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Daylight saving comes up for a referendum vote on election day. It will be opposed by an organized minority. Those who want it continued must be sure to express themselves on the ballot or they are likely to find their extra daily hours of summer sunlight taken from them.

Daylight saving is a most natural plan of altering one's daily habits according to the seasons of the year. It goes without saying that such a seasonal modification is a desirable thing. Every living thing regulates its day by the sun. Daylight saving permits man with his cumbersome machinery of civilization to reap the same advantages. It is the only feasible method of doing so.

That daylight saving inconveniences some people must be admitted, but the number so discomfited is but a fraction of the great number whose happiness and health are benefited by the additional hour of daylight. Daylight saving is an excellent phrase. It was born of the war when one gained everything. But it still holds good. In a city—and some two-thirds of the population of the United States is now urban—daylight, sunlight, is something to be saved. The city dweller gets little enough; he cannot afford to waste any.

So vote for daylight saving.

MEDITATION ON RETURN GAMES.

Northwestern has played Indiana twice this year and Michigan and Minnesota are to play a second time before the end of the season. These return matches were forced upon the coaches by the schedule making practices of the conference. Still there is a good deal to be said for the idea.

Return games can show how much the teams have developed in the weeks intervening and how much the players and coaches profited by their mistakes. Professional red bloods will protest that life there is no second guessing, and in sport, therefore, there should be none either. Nonsense. We spend most of our lives second-guessing, and the better we are at it the farther along we get. We are forever playing return matches. We find ourselves facing the same opponents with the same rules. He wouldn't buy the bonds last week, but maybe he can be induced to do it this time. He was able to cut his overhead 15 per cent last year; can he do it again this year? She induced her husband to go to the opera three times last season; she will make it four this year or consider herself a failure. It took about fifteen years of second-guessing before Europe proved its superiority to Napoleon, and thirty years of it before Catholic and Protestant Europe were convinced that the best either could hope for was a scoreless tie. We won the civil war on a return game after taking an early season trimming. Bryan was a flash in his first game but he never was so good again. Roosevelt proved that he could have won without the lucky forward pass of his first game.

Return matches add a good deal to the moral value of football. We'd like to see more of them.

THE TAX LAW AMENDMENT.

A leading authority on tax laws sends us the following criticism of the arguments advanced by those in favor of the tax law amendment which will be submitted to the voter tomorrow. We believe the soundness of his comment deserves the attention of our readers.

"Proponents of the revenue amendment to the state constitution point out to the voter:

1. That it would permit an income tax in substitution for the present general property tax.

2. That under it, real estate could not be classified with different rates of taxation for different classes of real estate.

3. That every one would be protected by the necessity of a two-thirds vote to pass a tax law under the amendment.

"But these proponents of the revenue amendment fail to point out to the voter:

1. That this amendment would permit an income tax in addition to the present general property tax. That by a vote of 104 to 5 the house of representatives of the general assembly voted down the proposal that this amendment should provide that one may deduct from his income tax the amount paid by him as general property tax [Journal of the house, 1926, p. 873].

2. That under the amendment, income from real estate could be classified with different rates of taxation on the different classes of income from real estate.

3. That the power in two-thirds of the general assembly to classify is the power to over-tax those represented by the other one-third, and that the only real protection lies in our present constitutional requirement that everybody must be taxed on the same basis at the same rate."

THE SANITARY DISTRICT.

Three sanitary district trustees are to be elected on Tuesday. The sanitary board consists of nine members, of whom three at present are Democrats and six are Republicans. Of the Republicans, four belonging to the Crowe-Barrett faction have been working in a bipartisan arrangement with the three Democrats to divide the board's patronage. The effort to provide jobs enough to satisfy two parties has led to extravagance in administration. The figures were brought out in the audit of the district's books under the auspices of the Association of Commerce. The audit indicated, for example, that only $10,000 was annually for maintenance and operation was properly spent; the remaining $122,000, much of it represented by salaries, was wasted.

The same report commanded the engineering principles and practices of the board. Much of the credit for this aspect of the board's work must go to Lawrence King, a Republican, president of the district, who is a candidate for reelection. We believe he deserves reelection.

For the other two seats we recommend the Democratic candidates, John J. Touhy and George Hull Porter. Touhy is serving his third term as alderman from the 27th ward and has proved himself a useful public servant. He has had the support of the Municipal Voters' league. Porter is president of one of the subsidiaries of the Western Electric company. His record suggests that he is above the average in ability and integrity and his technical knowledge is, of course, an asset of the first rank.

The Republican opponents of Touhy and Porter are Morris Eller and Charles Graydon. Graydon is not so well qualified as either Porter or Touhy and if there is little to be said in favor of Graydon, there is much to be said against Eller. His testimony before the Reed committee provides ample evidence that he looks upon his office primarily as a means of building up a political machine.

The election of Porter and Touhy will raise the quality of the board and it will serve, as well, to end the bipartisan arrangement which has been one of the underlying causes for the extravagance of recent years.

A PICTURE OF BUREAUCRACY.

Several months ago a hunt for surplus furniture was made in the interior department building at Washington and thirty two-ton trucks were loaded up with what was found, a value of $8,000, and a great deal of office space was released. The other day there was a cleanup of the desks in the department and the clerks dug out 45,000 worth of surplus supplies which, when collected, filled a room. Among the recovered articles were 10,000 pencils, 5,000 penholders, 2,000 boxes of paper clips, 250 inkwells, etc. It is probably unfair to permit a virtue of a department to make a picture of the infirmities of bureaucracy, but the picture is there of the clerks working with thirty truck loads of unneeded furniture and a room full of surplus pencils, pens, clips, and inkwells. They broke away from system long enough to get rid of the surplus and send it back to the supply division, from which it probably will trickle in again until there is another house cleaning.

Editorial of the Day

THEY DARE NOT ANSWER.

[Illinois State Register, Springfield.]

It is not surprising that Frank L. Smith, Republican candidate for United States senator, and his lieutenants avoid a direct discussion of the primary election fund scandal. They talk about how much it costs to run for office in Illinois. They say that Col. Smith's record as chairman of the Illinois commerce commission is an open book. They avoid any definite denial of the charge that Smith's acceptance of vast sums of money from utility heads, while he was chairman of the Illinois commerce commission was a direct violation of the law.

If it was such a violation of the law, do Smith and his lieutenants defend law breaking?

Do they deny that if Smith should be elected, the state of Illinois will again be embarrassed by a fight in the United States senate to prevent Smith's taking his seat?

Do they deny that an analogy will be drawn in the senate and in the press throughout the nation between the infamous Newberry campaign fund scandal and the Smith campaign fund scandal?

Do they think it will be the honor of the state of Illinois to have the state thus embarrassed?

These questions are not being answered directly and they will not be answered directly.

The reasons are obvious and the cry is made to "vote the ticket straight."

Among some of us small in political stature they expect to grow into office through a hole no larger than the party circle.

FIGHTING A TENDENCY TO GOITRE.

R. L. BRAM contends that an alert, well informed person can pick out the people who tend to develop goitre; that a person with a tendency to goitre can adjust their lives so that the disease will not overtake them; finally that most people with goitre can live in fairly good health if they will live properly.

The person with exophthalmic goitre should keep out of speeding automobile. They should avoid sex plays, blood and thunder plays and hairbreadth escapes on the stage, in literature and in life.

I have in mind one physician who has had goitre for several decades who keeps it in check by what he calls "the case of exophthalmic goitre" which is: extreme mental alertness, emotional instability, sparkling eyes, super-sensitivity, occasional hysterical attacks. The skin is soft and moist and apt to mollify easily. There is a tendency to cold feet and skin marking. The pulse tends to be fast and sometimes irregular. The tendency having been suspected, the history is inquired into. It will be found that an occasional case of exophthalmic goitre is part of the family tree. The tendency to exophthalmic goitre runs in families about as does the tendency to heart trouble.

At ten months she should be examined for goitre. It would be all right to give her a little cooked cereal at six months?

REPLY. At about 4 to 5 months she should have started orange juice about two months of age. Then she should not work as a telephone operator in a busy exchange.

Misses' Coats, Sixth Floor, Middle, Wabash

This sale, held annually during November, is the most important merchandising event of the year in our apparel sections. Thousands of coats have been assembled for it—of the newest materials, the most fashionable furs, the smartest lines. Every type of coat—for sports, for street, for travel, for formal wear—is in the sale. Coats for larger women are included. Every coat is new. The prices are low because they mean value. When you see the coats you will note the quality of their materials and furs, and linings, the high standards of their tailoring.

The four sections participating in the sale constitute probably the largest existing retail coat-buying division. The tremendous scope and buying power of such an organization enable us to offer coats at these remarkably low prices.

Distinctive Youthful Models For Misses, Shown at Left

Each Coat makes an immediate appeal to young women—besides that of excellent material and fine furs. It may lie in some new arrangement of the fur—the idea of a well known French designer—the pattern of a novelty tweed, a particularly unusual hip or back design or in the interest of a color combination. The models, which are shown at the left, indicate only slightly the charm of the collection.

MORRIS DEFIES DEVIL ON EVE OF MURDER TRIAL

Fundamentalist Leader Pleads Self-Defense.

By PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 31.—(Special.)—The Rev. J. F. Norris, leader of the triumvirate of preachers leading the national fundamentalist movement, will go on trial before Judge George E. Hoey in the Criminal court here tomorrow morning on the charge of having murdered D. E. Chipps, lumberman, on July 17.

While on its technical side the case seems likely to meet a decision as to whether the Rev. Mr. Norris was justified in self-defense in killing the unarmed man that came to him in his pastor's study—in its large aspect the trial is a struggle between this community and the Norris church, the First Baptist, said to have a membership of 12,000.

Doubt Jury Can Be Secured.

It is generally predicted on the eve of the trial that it will be found impossible to get a jury in this county, and a change of venue will be necessary.

"Who can condemn those who are in Jesus Christ?" the minister has preached and written since his indictment. His congregation has raised a fund of $20,000 to defend him.

"The devil in the pit of hell had better leave this church alone," Norris said this morning, as flushed and excited after a great emotional appeal he went alone to the "mourners' bench" in his church, he counted his saved ones by the dozen.

"Ever since Sunday, July 17," he said, "I have prayed God every day that I could add 500 souls to this church. Now, it is more than six hundred. And as sure as the sun rises and the stars shine and Jesus rose from the grave, greater things than this will happen here."

First Baptist church is said to have the largest fundamentalist congregation in the world, about 5,000. They stood in this morning, as this, the last day before the trial, was to be a great day in the history of the church.

More Like Theater Than Church.

In the main auditorium of the gray stone church, located in the business district with three rows of towers above the steeple, a thousand or more sat and sang while waiting for Dr. Norris to appear. In two other brick buildings the younger classes were gathered. The songs of the old time religion rose and fell in hypnotic rhythm with song leaders urging and two grand pianos thumping away on the stage.

It was more like a theater than a

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(Special.)—The body of Lieut. Frank H. Conant Jr., crack navy flier and Schneider cup entrant, who crashed with his plane while flying over Winter Harbor, thirty miles north of Norfolk, yesterday, was recovered today, the navy department was informed.

Conant's body was found strapped in the seat of the wrecked plane, the parachute in place and his hand still clutching the control. Officers estimated the bullet that the young aviator was flying low when out of the pontoons of his plane struck a fish net stake.

Conant's body was taken to the Norfolk Naval hospital, where a board of inquest will meet. Burial will be in Arlington cemetery, Washington, Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Conant was en route from the Amherst station here to Hampton Roads, his plane full about 1:30 Saturday afternoon, about a mile off shore near Mathews, Va.

17 years. His power lies wholly within this church which has given around his leadership, for the Baptist organization of Texas has refused to permit delegates from his church to seat in conventions.

NORRIS DEFIES DEVIL ON EVE OF MURDER TRIAL

Fundamentalist Leader
Pleads Self-Defense.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

For Worth, Texas Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The Rev. J. Frank Norris, one of the triumvirs of preachers leading the national fundamentalist movement, will go on trial before Judge George E. Hoey in the Criminal court here tomorrow morning on the charge of having murdered D. E. Chipps, lumberman, on July 17, last.

While on its technical side the case seems simply merely a decision as to whether the Rev. Mr. Norris was justified in self-defense in shooting the unarmed man that came to his church pastor's study—in its large aspect the trial is a struggle between this community and the Norris church, the First Baptist, said to have a member of 12,000.

Doubt Jury Can Be Secured.

It is generally predicted on the eve of the trial that it will be found impossible to get a jury in this country, and a change of venue will be necessary.

"Who can condemn those who are in Jesus Christ?" the minister has preached and written since his indictment. His congregation has raised a fund of $20,000 to defend him.

"The devils in the pits of hell had better leave this church alone," Norris said this morning, as, flushed and excited after a great emotional appeal to bring sinners to the mourners' bench in his church, he counted his adherents by the dozen.

"Ever since Sunday, July 18," he said, pausing significantly on the date, "I have prayed God every day that I could add 500 souls to this church. Now, it is more than six hundred. And as sure as the sun rises and the stars shine and Jesus rose from the grave, greater things than this will happen here."

The First Baptist church is said to have the largest Sunday school in the world, about 5,000. They flocked in this morning, as this, the last day before the trial, was to be a great day in the history of the church.

More Like Theater Than Church.

In the main auditorium of the gray stone church, located in the business district with great radio towers rising above the steeple, a thousand or more people crowded in to see the Rev. Mr. Norris to appear. In two other brick buildings the younger classes were gathered. The songs of the old time religion rose and fell in hypnotic rhythm with songs leaders urging and two grand pianos thumping away on the stage.

It was more like a theater than a

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The body of Lieut. Frank H. Conant Jr., crack navy flyer and Schneider cup entrant, who crashed with his plane while flying over Winter Harbor, thirty miles north of Norfolk, yesterday, was recovered today, the navy department was informed.

Conant's body was found strapped in the seat of the wrecked plane, the parachute in place and his hand still clutching the control. Officers expressed the belief that the young aviator was flying low when one of the pontoons of his seaplane struck a fish net stake.

Conant's body was taken to the Norfolk Naval hospital, where a board of inquest will meet. Burial will be in Arlington cemetery, Washington, Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Conant was en route from the Anacostia station here to Hampton Roads, when his plane fell about 1:30 Saturday afternoon about a mile off shore near Mathews, Va.

church, and when the gray velvet curtains parted at last and the quick, slender figure of the minister stepped out of the wings, tossing a soft gray hat upon a piano and bowing his head at the pulpit, the theatrical effect was pronounced. Prayer and sermons were broadcast. He talked of the death and resurrection of Christ, and there was much about the trial of Jesus, so much that one felt in some suspense that this man was condemning himself, reaching for help, perhaps, in dwelling upon the last supper, the night before the crucifixion, and all the bitter agonies of the Savior.

"But that night passed, and it came morning," he said, and quoted comforting old verses with all things working together for good, and dipped into the mystical struggles of man, who was always at war with his flesh.

Leads Converts Indo Pool.

As he went on and on, in two sermons, painting the glories of the heavenly city, where all shall meet again and be at peace, exhaustively pleading and gesticulating until he was wet with sweat, he concluded his choir of 500, became more and more moved. At one high moment of emotion, a woman became hysterical and shrieked and wept, thanking God, and others began to weep and plead with fathers, husbands, or sons to go forward under the seductive music of "Jesus Is Calling" and join the church.

And many did—youth and old they threaded a weeping way to the front where the minister clasped their hands. Then he led many converts down into the pool built in the floor upon the stage in the offing of baptism.

Several hundred members of the congregation were called upon to attend a closed meeting after the service. It had been planned to hold a church parade of 10,000 today, but this was called off, it is said, because the mayor objected. Special prayer meetings were held.

Mr. Norris has been a stormy figure in Texas politics and church affairs for 17 years. His power lies wholly within this church which has grown around his leadership, for the Baptist organization of which he has refused to permit delegates from his church to seat in conventions.

Friends That Led to Killing.

The trouble which resulted in this killing began several months ago when the city council and mayor proposed to widen a street. Norris attacked this plan, alleging the price was too high, and at the same time raking the administration for trying to collect taxes on some of his own church property. A feud developed between Norris and Mayor H. C. Meacham and the minister criticised the mayor's personal life.

Things grew hotter and on Saturday, July 17, Chipps, a friend of the minister, started out to hunt up the minister. Chipps had been to the mayor's study. He had been to the pastor's phone and announced he was coming over. What happened between Chipps and the mayor will come out at the trial. The lumberman was known as a fighter, and according to Norris, threatened him over the phone and said he was coming to kill him unless he would take back what he had said about the mayor.

Deacon Seen Slaying.

Chipps went up to the pastor's study. L. H. Nutt, one of the church deacons, was with the minister. The story is that Chipps said he would kill Norris and reached toward his hip pocket as if to draw a gun, when Norris reached toward his own pocket.

Another version is that Chipps was killed on sight, in the anteroom. Carl Glaze, 14 years old, was delivering a note to the pastor at the time, and made a statement that the shooting occurred outside the study. Recently, it was reported that this boy had been taken to the home of church members and kept there until he had changed his statement.

"I'm sorry, but I had to do it in self-defense," the minister told the police when he was arrested. The police found no gun in the possession of Chipps.

The day after the killing Norris occupied his pulpit as usual, quoting the Bible in support of self-defense.

Friends Bible in Defense.

"The Bible says that a nation shall defend itself against an invading foe," he said. "Man is the same inalienable right. The commandment, 'Thou Shalt Not Kill,' does not preclude the right of self-defense. No one would shrink from killing an attacking rattlesnake."

Norris is 53 years old, but looks much younger, at least in the friendly atmosphere of his church. In 1912, after alleged mysterious attacks by persons never identified, his church was destroyed by fire and his home was burned. Norris was tried for arson and acquitted. He was later tried for perjury and acquitted. Once he was ordered to leave town, but he and a group of followers armed themselves with shotguns at the church, and he was allowed to stay.

He has received the open support of Lloyd Broadborth, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in this state. Chipps, the victim, was 56 years old, a native of Virginia, and member of the Shrine. Mrs. Chipps is active in the prosecution.

PLAN TO UNSNARL CHICAGO TRAFFIC IS NEARLY READY

Would Bar Loop Parking, Regulate Pedestrians.

Chicago, in its fight to throw off the yoke of horse and buggy streets in an age of motor cars and skyscrapers, will be handed an effective new weapon, probably next Wednesday, by the street traffic committee of the Association of Commerce.

The committee is to present to the city council the report of its $40,000 survey, completed, after nearly a year of painstaking study of the traffic problem in all its phases by a staff of experts under Miller McClintock, traffic engineer.

Action on the report, it is said, will mark the first step in putting Chicago at the side of cities which are seeking safer and speedier traffic with a sensible program.

Makes Ten Recommendations.

The report, comprising 300 pages, will include a set of specific recommendations which the committee hopes will be adopted, not only by the council, but also by the suburban towns, park boards and other governmental bodies throughout the metropolitan area. The chief recommendations are summarized as follows:

1. A single set of traffic laws for the whole Chicago region.

2. A complete ban on parking in the loop and other congested business districts.

3. Removal of horse-drawn vehicles from the loop, or at least their relegation to side streets.

4. Pedestrian regulation. Asked.

5. Further study of the staggered hour system whereby business employees would enter and leave the downtown during different periods to reduce congestion peaks.

6. Coordinated control or progressive timing system for traffic lights.

7. Continued efforts to close bridges over the Chicago river during heavy traffic.

8. More through streets and boulevards as high speed arteries.

9. Continued widening and double-decking of heavily traveled streets.

10. Wider county highways as gateways to major thoroughfares in the city.

Report Cites Loop Congestion.

The loop, it is indicated, will be the focal point of the new regulations. The area, which a century ago to be one of the densest traffic districts of its size in the world, is in an alarming state of congestion, the survey report says.

Chief among the remedial measures will be the no parking regulation. About 25 per cent of the city's population enters the loop every day, it was found, but less than 1 per cent uses the parked vehicles which block two lanes of traffic.

朋友们对 SACCO AND VANZETTI IN FRANCE THREATEN AMERICANS

PARIS, Oct. 31.—[UPI]—Threats of reprisals against American tourists, in case Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti are not tried here in Massachusetts, were made by Communists who visited the American embassy Saturday, according to the newspaper Humanité.

The newspaper says that Deputy Andre Berthon, one of those in the delegation, told Sheldon Whitehouse, councillor of the embassy:

"American tourists in France were never very badly treated by Parisians last summer. The anti-American manifestations of the Communists annoyed the workers; but if Sacco and Vanzetti are assassinated it is to be feared that the emotions of the French proletariat will be expressed by reprisals. Electrocution of these men would be a crime which the French, like the workers in all countries, will not allow."

It is expected the strongest opposition will develop.

Teaming companies have strenuously opposed previous efforts to restrict the movement of drays and wagons, holding that for certain types of hauling, they are indispensable. Traffic experts reply that their slow speed is largely responsible for "the snail-like pace imposed on loop vehicles."

Would Remedy Jaywalking.

23 Passengers Injured When Street Cars Crash

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Twenty-three persons were injured when street cars crashed here late today. One car was hurled from the track and thrown on its side. It contained about 20 passengers, 18 of whom suffered from glass cuts and shock. Faulty brakes were blamed for the accident.

The report will be presented by Elmer T. Stevens, chairman of the Association of Commerce traffic committee, which is composed of eighty business men, city officials, and traffic experts.

FLAPPERS DON'T AGITATE PRINCE; HE'S USED TO 'EM

Not Seeking Bride; Ileana Plays Tennis in Rain.

[Copyright by the New York Times Association Newspapers.]

On board the train of Roumania's train, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 31.—(Special)—Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana, in the course of their visit to the twin cities, enjoyed a few hours of informality they had been longing for ever since they reached America.

While Queen Marie was attending the official receptions given by the mayors and other leading officials and citizens of St. Paul and Minneapolis, the prince and the princess, who had left the train as it came through a flour mill and later to the Minnehaha Country club, on the shore of Lake Calhoun, where Nicholas jolted, chafing with members and guests, while his sister played tennis with a group of Minneapolis young people in a driving rain.

Not Hunting U. S. Bride.

Incidentally, during the visit, the prince indicated that he had not come to America hunting a bride, wealthy or otherwise. This statement was drawn from the prince when, in an unguarded moment a group of local reporters gathered around him and began questioning him. When his hosts discovered that he was being interviewed they were much perturbed, but not the prince. He appeared to enjoy parrying the pointed questions.

"What do you think of the American flapper?" one reporter asked him.

"Well, they're really an old story," replied the prince. "Every time I go to Paris I see a lot of them."

He could not be trapped into an admission that American girls were either charming or otherwise. And then some one asked him whether he would marry outside royal circles.

"That creates so many difficulties," said Nicholas, "difficulties for a man's wife as well as for himself. It really isn't fair to the girl, you know. There are many attractive princesses in Europe," he explained.

Plays Tennis in Rain.

From the flour mills the party moved to the Minnehaha club. The Minneapolis people had religiously lived up to the request to keep all formally up to the court to allow the young people a few hours of fun and normal conviviality.

Their enjoyment was evident. The princess was eager to play tennis. She had brought no tennis with her, but she borrowed an outfit of sports clothes and went out on the court in spite of the rain, which increased in intensity as the afternoon wore on, for two hours of strenuous exercise. At first Princess Ileana played singles with Miss Margaret Crosby, daughter of John Crosby. Later Miss Olive Crosby and Albert Crosby joined the party, and several games of doubles were played.

Meanwhile, Queen Marie, who had gone on to St. Paul on the train, was received at the Union station by Mayor L. C. Hodges, other officials and citizens. The queen was conducted through a large crowd gathered in the station to her automobile and motored to the 128th Infantry armory, one of the most imposing military turnouts which has greeted her in America.

Formal Reception to Queen.

At the capitol the queen met Gov. Theodore Christianson and Mrs. Christianson and the Minneapolis reception committee, headed by Mayor George E. Leach.

In the evening the queen and her children were guests at a dinner and reception at the home of Louis W. Hill, son of the late James J. Hill and chairman of the board of the Great Northern railroad.

The queen's train departed about midnight for North Dakota, the queen looking forward to the close contact she will have with the ordinary farmers of that state.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Oct. 31.—Simultaneously with the government's new campaign to prevent the publication in the Roumanian press of news of Queen Marie's American tour or news concerning former Crown Prince Carol, and to keep news unfavorable to the administration from leaving the country, the government has expelled two American newspaper correspondents from Roumania.

The New York Times correspondent recently was expelled, being given only twenty-four hours to leave the country. After his expulsion the government warned other foreign correspondents with broad hints that the same treatment awaited them if they refused to bow to the administration. However, most of the correspondents disregarded the order and continued to send what they wished. The officials were furious, and expelled the representative of the United Press.

The editors of the Bucharest newspapers, Lupta and Adyser, have been summoned before the minister of interior and warned not to print in the future any news concerning former Crown Prince Carol. The entire editions of the papers carrying a story on Prince Carol's return to Roumania were confiscated because comments on the prince's affairs displeased the government.

The government is doing everything possible to keep the newspapers from receiving dispatches from abroad con-

PARIS GIRL TRIES TO HUG PRINCE OF WALES; ARRESTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The Prince of Wales, as well as Premier Benito Mussolini, tonight escaped an attempt to "get" him.

As the prince was boarding a train to return to London, a young French woman dressed in the latest Paris fashion, broke through the police lines, rushed to the prince and attempted to throw her arms about him. Officers intervened, taking the girl to the police station, where she became hysterical.

The girl had been in Paris and had fallen madly in love with him. Several times she had tried to get near him in crowds, but was unsuccessful, until tonight she realized it would be her last chance to embrace him.

The girl is 18 years old and is a stenographer in a government office.

The prince maintained complete calm, proceeding on his journey.

We have some wonderful drawings of our shoes reproduced in halftone for newspaper advertising purposes, but really these picture prints don't look much different from some prints we have seen made to represent five dollar shoes, nor any better than some made to idealize sixteen-fifty footwear. Our shoes are more than pictures: they fit, they have pear-shaped heels, they are stylish, they are comfortable; and our style and staple lines with walk-over main spring arches are semi-corrective.

New York, Oct. 31.—Frances Stevens Hale, Mrs. Henry Stevens, will take the defense during their trial on Wednesday at Sonnenberg of the Rev. Frank and Mrs. Hale, who announced tonight that defense will be made to show that none of the men involved in the 1922 shooting of the Stevens' home had any effort to shake the defense called by Assistant Alexander Pfeiffer, who will be present.

Alibi Also for

The fact that Mrs. Hale was announced seven days ago until tonight there is uncertainty as to whether it will be followed by the fourth defendant, George Carpenter, after all, and his half, and his too, as his answer to the Stevens' county.

The first statement of the defendants Senator Clarence E. Stevens.

"I have every expectation that Henry Stevens stand in his own defense, as he is innocent of the Stevens' home. The simple that he was drunk and knew about it."

Later, Mr. Pfeiffer said: "All of the defense on the stand."

The Stevens brothers are confident that the trial jury will bring against them.

It was reported that Stevens would identify himself on the stand. Stevens' wife was in front of him and reported that two alibi witnesses would swear to him in the rear door spoke to him as though he was drunk and knew about it."

COLBY'S NOVEMBER SPECIAL

Four Models to Choose from

Your $39.50 Complete

These lamps are the best values we have ever found and will be a valuable addition to any room.

If you appreciate owning a good bargain, just compare these with lamps offered about town at from $60.00 to $85.00.

One model illustrated has an exquisitely chiseled base in silver and gold, not the ordinary pressed base. It is fitted with an exquisite tailored shade, in genuine tinted sheepskin, throwing a diffused amber light.

These shades are something new in the lamp world. They are not perishable like silk and may be easily cleaned. The other model has an etched standard fitted into a black marble base, trimmed with lacquer red and is also fitted with a tinted sheepskin shade. Note that the trimming on all the models is in genuine gold leaf.

This offer expires November 30. No mail or telephone orders filled.

BEGINNING with the October issue, the improved Delineator based its appeal on a new idea in publishing. An idea diametrically opposed to the general tendency to drive for quantity of circulation almost regardless of quality.

The publishers of Delineator believed that the time had come in this country when a woman's magazine of the right character could seek quality of circulation and let quantity take care of itself. We proposed to make the right magazine and let its circulation find its own level—which we believed would be a high one.

Results on the October Delineator have amply justified our faith and surprised even ourselves at the quantities of women who eagerly respond to a quality appeal.

News-stand sales are the quickest test in such a case. With the October issue of Delineator, newsstand sales throughout the country jumped 30 per cent over September sales.

In Greater New York, the increase was 50 per cent; in Philadelphia, 55 per cent; in Cleveland, 36 per cent. Similar increases were reported from many other cities.

As everyone familiar with magazine publishing will agree, these results are phenomenal. What the figures will show for the November number we do not know—but we have every reason to expect great things. For the November Delineator* (the first issue with which the Designer is combined) represents as great a step in advance of the October issue as the October issue did over previous numbers.

*To advertisers it may be of interest to know that the guaranteed paid circulation of Delineator (with the Designer combined) is 1,250,000. As subscriptions to both magazines will be fulfilled with the one, and as the combined circulation of the two was 1,700,000, it is obvious that at present there is a most decided bonus circulation.

Quality of the Quantity

"High Winds," an absorbing novel of divorce by Arthur Train, the distinguished author of "His Children's Children," begins in this issue.

Page 6 of November Delineator

Kathleen Norris knows modern young people and in this searching novel of American marriage she writes understandingly of youth's restless search for happiness.

Uneven hems, floating draperies, beads and a U shaped décolletage are new notes that promise to be popular in the season's evening dresses.

Fashions in table manners change, too. Mrs. John Alexander King describes some convenient European methods that are being adopted by socially prominent Americans.

French designers of the younger school are using checks and plaids for the smart sports clothes and simple day costumes in which they specialize.

Page 38 of November Delineator

IN quality, the November Delineator is a decided step ahead of the improved October number. New serials by both Arthur Train and Kathleen Norris appear in this issue. John Erskine, Coningsby Dawson, Albert Payson Terhune, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, Gamaliel Bradford, Konrad Bercovici and "Elizabeth," Countess Russell, are numbered among the other distinguished contributors.

Under the direction of Mildred Maddocks Bentley, Delineator Home Institute still further develops a service that is planned to be as broad as the home itself and destined to be, we believe, the final authority in modern applied domestic service. One entire floor of the Butterick Building is now fully equipped and devoted to activities of the Institute. Several absorbing pages of the November Delineator are the fruition of Mrs. Bentley's initial programme.

In fashions, as in fiction, food, furnishings and all other family interests, the November issue, page by page, gives vivid proof of what the improved Delineator is doing to further the art of gracious living.

Throughout, in appearance, character and scope, Delineator is a magazine of a quality that carries an irresistible appeal to the mothers and daughters of this country's substantial families which have discerning tastes and the means to gratify them. In a word:

SHIP OPERATORS AID HANEY FUND IN OREGON RACE

Man Coolidge Wanted Off
Board May Win.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special]—New York and gulf coast shipping interests, all operators of United States shipping board vessels, contributed heavily to the campaign fund which is being spent in Oregon to elect Bert E. Haney, a former member of the shipping board and Democratic candidate for the senate, it is revealed in the report of the Haney for Senator club filed with the secretary of the senate in accordance with the federal corrupt practices act.

Mr. Haney, who left the shipping board last spring when his term expired after having refused repeated demands from President Coolidge for his resignation.

Conceded an excellent chance to win the election in the face of a split in the Republican ranks between Fredrick Stover, the regular Republican nominee, and Senator Stanfield, who entered the race as an independent who was defeated for renomination in the primary. Haney declares in a personal report to the senate secretary that he has spent only $775 in his campaign.

Ship Operators Contribute.

The report of the Haney club, however, discloses contributions aggregating $12,918, of which it is admitted, $6,359 was given by New York ship operators and a small amount by an officer of a Savannah, Ga., shipping corporation in the South Atlantic sea line.

The largest individual contributor listed in the club's report is John E. Deckendorff, New York, said to be the head of the Black Diamond Steamship company, who is credited with a gift of $4,800 in two equal installments. E. J. McCormack of Bay Ridge, N. Y., and A. V. Moore, New York, associated in Moore & McCormack, Inc., gave $1,200 and $1,100 respectively according to the report. E. S. Trosdahl, operator of the American Palmetto line between gulf coast and South American ports, is listed as the contributor of a smaller sum.

Cashed with Admiral Palmer.

Other contributors reported by the club include $2,000 from the gulf committee, $1,250 from Thad Sweet of Seattle, Wash., and $1,250 from William Erdis, also of Seattle.

MURDERER'S CELL DOOR SOON MAY CLOSE ON DURKIN

Penitentiary walls may soon close about Martin J. Durkin, the dapper murderer who kept the Chicago police in a turmoil for weeks while he evaded capture. It was indicated yesterday by his attorney, Eugene F. McGarry, that he would make no attempt to obtain a further stay of the mittimus ordering Durkin confined in Joliet prison for 35 years for the murder of Federal Agent Edwin C. Shanahan.

The stay, which had been granted by Judge Harry B. Miller pending permission to appeal to the State Supreme court, expires today, and Prosecutor Louis Blumenthal, who obtained the conviction, said he believed Sheriff Hoffman will order Durkin's removal to the prison as soon as possible.

Some delay may be encountered. It was believed, in the fact that Durkin's case, in the federal court, where he was indicted upon a capital charge, is still pending on a motion for a new trial. The federal authorities may ask that Durkin be held in Chicago until he is sentenced, which is due to take place today, but may be postponed.

"Water washes out the poisons of the body, dissolves the food and makes it more easily assimilated, and stimulates every organ of the body," Dr. Fox pointed out. "Drinking six to eight glasses of water a day Chicago's water supply is safe and has the necessary 100 per cent kick for health."

An Announcement of Extraordinary Importance to Lovers of Oriental Rugs

SPECIAL NOTICE

The Executors with the Greenwich Bank, New York, Trustee of the Estate of

S. H. TOPAKYAN
New York City

Have sold to Nahigian Brothers a selection from the fine stock of rare silk and wool Oriental Carpets and Rugs held in trust for the above estate, to the amount of $150,000.00, at a sacrifice for quick disposal.

Those who understand and enjoy the really wonderful beauty of Oriental Rugs, particularly in the older weaves, and know how increasingly difficult it is to secure them, will appreciate the opportunity for selection presented in the S. H. Topakyan collection, one of the largest, most important and distinctive in all America.

Urge for settlement on the part of heirs prompted the Executors and Trustee to accept an offer we had thought impossible, and the result enables us to place on sale hundreds of marvelously beautiful Oriental Carpets and Rugs in both silk and wool at prices agreeably surprising.

Attempt to convey a proper idea of the importance and beauty of this selection or its opportunities for satisfying both taste and purse must prove hopeless, comprising as it does pieces ranging from the largest size Oriental Carpet on through to exquisite smaller pieces — so myriad are the designs, colors, weaves, we can but urge your seeing them.

May we emphasize the importance of early selection, the desirability of every piece and the unlikelihood of such another opportunity?

Penitentiary walls may soon close about Martin J. Durkin, the dapper murderer who kept the Chicago police in a turmoil for weeks while he evaded capture. It was indicated yesterday by his attorney, Eugene F. McGarry, that he would make no attempt to obtain a further stay of the mittimus ordering Durkin confined in Joliet prison for 35 years for the murder of Federal Agent Edwin C. Shanahan.

The stay, which had been granted by Judge Harry B. Miller pending permission to appeal to the State Supreme court, expires today, and Prosecutor Louis Blumenthal, who obtained the conviction, said he believed Sheriff Hoffman will order Durkin's removal to the prison as soon as possible.

Some delay may be encountered. It was believed, in the fact that Durkin's case, in the federal court, where he was indicted upon a capital charge, is still pending on a motion for a new trial. The federal authorities may ask that Durkin be held in Chicago until he is sentenced, which is due to take place today, but may be postponed.

"Water washes out the poisons of the body, dissolves the food and makes it more easily assimilated, and stimulates every organ of the body," Dr. Fox pointed out. "Drinking six to eight glasses of water a day Chicago's water supply is safe and has the necessary 100 per cent kick for health."

CHARLES E. FOX, ARCHITECT AND SPORTSMAN, DIES

Designer of Many Large Hotels in Chicago.

Charles E. Fox, widely known architect and sportsman, died at 4 o'clock yesterday morning at his apartment, 1106 Bitchie court, of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 54 years old.

The illness that caused Mr. Fox's death began on June 28, 1925, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis while a passenger on a train at Kendallville, Ind. He was taken to a hospital there, where he lay for three days unconscious before his identity was discovered and he was brought to Chicago. His condition was complicated by bronchitis and nephritis.

Mr. Fox came to Chicago in 1898 from Reading, Pa., where he was born on May 1, 1870. He became connected with the firm of Holabird & Roche architects. Later he went into partnership with Benjamin H. Marshall, with whom he established the firm of Marshall & Fox, which was later dissolved.

Veteran Chicago Yachtman. He was for several years president of the Illinois Society of Architects, and headed the Architects Club of Chicago when it was formed in January of last year. Fox was to be an enthusiastic and skilled yachtsman. He was a former commodore of the Chicago Yacht club, which he joined in 1898. He was regarded as one of the best and most daring skippers in the history of the club, and was a veteran of many Mackinac island races.

Among the buildings he designed either individually or in collaboration with other architects, and the Blackstone, Drake, Monroe and Sherman buildings, the South Shore Country Club, John B. Murphy Memorial Hospital, the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, Standard Oil building, the Northwestern Insurance building at Milwaukee, and the fireproof Burlington building, which was credited by Fire Marshal Thomas O'Connor in 1922 with having saved the entire west side from destruction by fire in a great skyscraper conflagration.

Graduate in New Apartment. Mr. Fox was one of the first Chicago architects to advocate the style of large apartment houses. His ideas having been incorporated in the buildings at 1558 North State street and at 1596, 1598 and 1600 Lake Shore drive. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from the Fourth Presbyterian church. The Rev. John Timothy Stone will officiate. The body will be taken to Reading, Pa., for burial by Mrs. Benjamin F. Deane of Philadelphia, sister of Mr. Fox.

HUNDREDS PAY TRIBUTE TO BELL; FUNERAL TODAY

Comrades in 33d to Attend Rites.

Hundreds of his comrades in the 33d division paid tribute yesterday to Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr., as the body of the commander of the fighting Illinois division lay in state at the Belden Stratford hotel. Gen. Bell died on Thursday night.

Massed about the bier were the officers of the various units making up the 33d, which Gen. Bell led to victory in France. Noncommissioned officers of the division formed the guard of honor posted at the hotel.

The body is to lie in state until noon today, preceding funeral services at St. James Protestant Episcopal church, Cass and Ontario streets, at 2 p.m.

Fell Military Funeral.

Full military honors are to be accorded Gen. Bell, who was active in the service from his graduation from West Point in 1880 until his retirement three years ago. More than 1,000 soldiers from his old command will be in the procession which will proceed through Lincoln park to the cemetery.

Immediately following the gun carriage, which will bear the flag-draped casket, Gen. Bell's horse will be led with an empty saddle. A military band will play a dirge.

Detachments from many posts of the American Legion are also expected to march in a body. Elton M. Jolly, commander of Chicago post No. 210, issued orders for his men to assemble at 12:30 o'clock at Webster avenue and Lincoln Park West.

Daughter Reaches Chicago.

General Bell's daughter, Mrs. Scott Wood, and her husband, Col. Wood, arrived in Chicago yesterday from San Francisco. Scores of messages of condolence came from all over the country, addressed to Gen. Bell's widow, continued to arrive yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Milton J. Freeman, who succeeded Gen. Bell as commander of the 33d division, is in charge of the funeral arrangements. He is being assisted by Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, Frank R. Schwenkel and John J. Garret, and by Col. W. H. Graham, or the regular army. Interment will be at Rosehill cemetery.

A plan is under way to establish a permanent memorial to Gen. Bell at the proposed athletic field of the 33d division to be located near Wilmette. Junior commanders who served under Gen. Bell with the Prairie division were lavish in their praise yesterday of Gen. Bell's military competency. One cardinal point, they declared, was particularly in Gen. Bell's mind in selecting a staff officer: Can he make good a taking care of his men?

It was inconceivable how quickly he whipped the division into shape after taking command at Camp Logan, Houston, Tex., in December, 1917," said Brig. Gen. John V. Cianfa. "It meant thinning out the incompetents with a ruthless hand, but Gen. Bell was equal to the task. He was first of all a soldier. The will and the power to do was the thing that appealed to him. He knew how to lead a fighting force. No special privilege was tolerated.

Incompetents Weeded Out.

"More than a hundred officers were transferred out of the division in this weeding out process. Most of these were, of course, willing workers, but they didn't quite come up to the general's standard. Others were shifted about here and there, from one unit to another, until he had them where he believed they fitted in and could render the best service."

The division went to France the latter part of May, 1918, and was first stationed in a British sector. Later it became a part of the Second army.

Double Gains

An Announcement About Profits to Retail Merchants

If you are the kind of retail merchant who likes to check up on what manufacturers are doing to help you move goods—just translate the chart below into terms of your own store and your own community.

In 6 years the advertising carried by the Woman's Home Companion has increased 71 per cent—over 400 pages.

And at the present rate of circulation increase, the number of Companion readers will have grown by more than 300,000—in the 6 months ending December. That's 300,000 new readers in 184 days!

The first chart—on Advertising Growth—shows you how every year more manufacturers are investing their money in the Companion to help you sell more goods. It gives you an idea of how they are putting the power of this magazine behind more and more of the goods you carry—in order to build a bigger demand for their merchandise in your community.

The second chart—on Circulation Gains—tells you that the number of Woman's Home Companion readers in your own sales neighborhood is increasing faster right now than ever before in the magazine's history. And this on top of the fact that in 12 years Companion circulation has grown from less than 900,000 to over 2,000,000.

Thus with new readers joining the Companion at the rate of about 50,000 a month, total net paid circulation in excess of 2,195,000 is indicated for December.

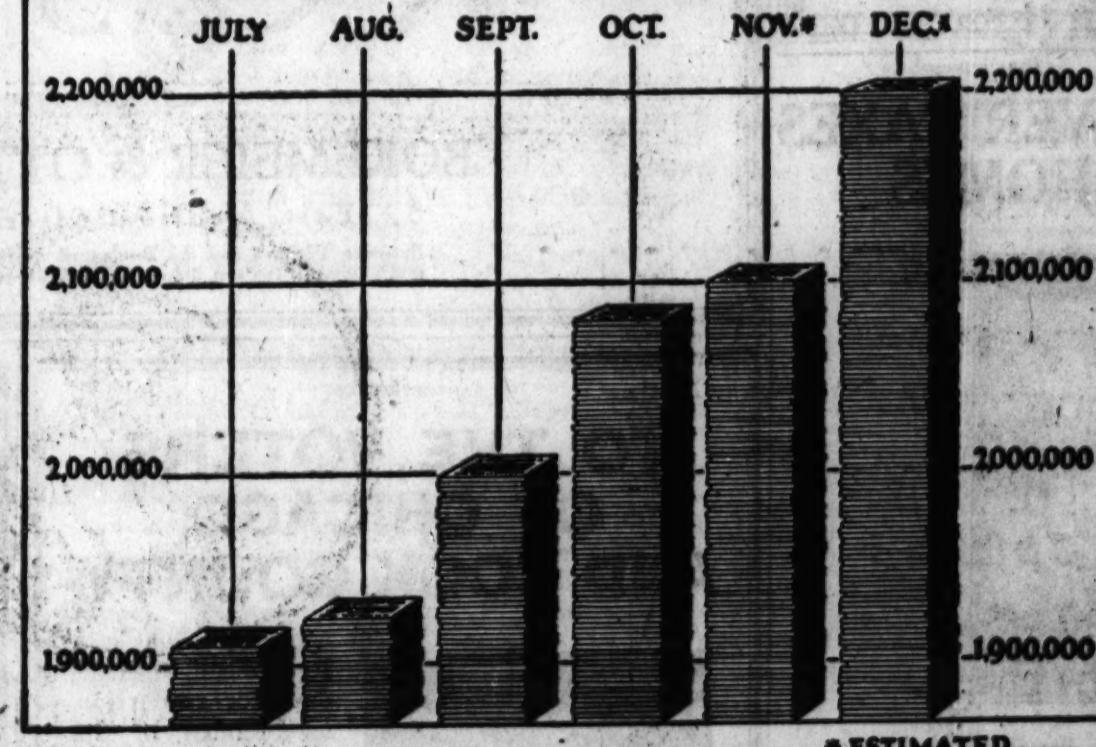

THESE double gains in circulation and advertising—plus the most distinguished editorial program in its career—are combining to make the 53rd year of the Companion its greatest.

These gains are pointing the way to increased profits for you and every other retail merchant in America. For every time you feature the goods you carry—as advertised in the Woman's Home Companion—you are putting the momentum of this growth back of your whole store.

BANDITS' LIQUOR PARTY LEADS TO DEATH OF FOUR

Robber Kills Two Pals, Officer, and Is Slain.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special]—Four persons—three men and a woman—were killed and two were wounded as the sequel to a champagne party staged by a bandit trio in the Highland Courts apartments early today when one of the bandits shot his two confederates and later shot two policemen who answered the alarm raised after the first shots before he was killed.

The dead are:

Patrolman Ernest Jones, 35, William James Olson, a bank robber.

Wanted for Murder.

James Caniffe, alias J. B. Quinn, who was wanted for two murders in New Jersey and a bank robbery and murder in Bellmore, Long Island, New York.

Unidentified woman, said to be Quinn's companion.

The wounded are:

Patrolman Ephraim Rancour, minute man of the Highland Park police department.

Earl Burns, occupant of the apartment adjoining that in which the murder occurred.

Receiving a call at 1:45 a. m. that shots had been fired in an apartment, Patrolman Rancour responded. They picked up Burns, a tenant, Jess Wickham, a former policeman, and Elmer Redman, city constable.

Officers Get No Warning.

Jones knocked at the door of the apartment, which was opened by Olson, dressed only in his bath robe.

"What's the trouble, Buddy?" asked

Jones, as the five crowded into the lobby.

"Nothing at all," replied Olson. He had opened the door with his left hand, keeping his right hand concealed behind his back.

"What's all this shooting about?"

"It's about this," Olson shouted.

Drawing his right hand from behind his back, Olson shot Jones through the heart. As Jones collapsed, Olson fired twice, hitting Rancour in the right shoulder and Burns in the left side of his face.

Olson motioned as if to fire, but his revolver jammed. He darted over to a dresser to grab another gun. As he did so, Rancour shot him down.

Find Fair Dead on Bed.

When Olson lay dead on the floor, Rancour entered the bedroom and found sprawled on the bed there the bodies of a man and a woman.

On a table in the room was found $10,000, believed to be the proceeds of a bank robbery.

On the table also were two empty and four full champagne bottles with a pint of whisky.

The police theory is that the trio quarreled over division of the $10,000 loot.

Quinn was identified by his fingerprints as James Caniffe, 30. On April 1, he and Frank Kearney and his son as they were driving their automobile in New Jersey. He asked for a ride, and being refused pulled his gun and shot both men. The older Kearney died immediately and the younger died in a hospital.

On April 4, 1924, Caniffe held up a bank at Bellmore, Long Island, and shot the cashier, Ernest L. Whitmore.

Caniffe also is wanted for complicity in the holdup of a mail truck at Ellington, N. J., when the driver was killed and $150,000 was stolen.

Elmer Passes a Piano Day, and Likes It

Orchestras Also Help Him Enjoy Sabbath.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Piano recitals were particularly numerous yesterday, orchestral concerts conspicuous, and vocal programs surprisingly few. All programs were of a particularly high order.

Of piano recitals, the one by John Powell, New York City, through W-G-N, 8:15, was of special interest by reason of the obvious vastness of the audience and the refined quality in performance.

The atmosphere of Mr. Powell's recital was that of beautiful tones and chordal grandeur expressed in simple, quiet serenity, and only occasionally in passionate outbursts.

The assisting soloist, Jeanne Gordon, contralto, was altogether satisfactory, but this part of the program seemed of secondary interest.

A half hour piano recital by Miss Herma Menth as a part of the Thour Methodist Episcopal church musical service, WBCN, 8 to 8:30, was something of a novelty by reason of the occasion, and a sharp contrast to the usual piano recitals anywhere by reason of the distinctly spectacular character of the pieces and the playing.

Contrasting again was the piano recital by Modestine Boguslavski, KYW, 4:30 to 5:30. Here was an atmosphere of sparkling, sunlit, full afternoon happiness in a program suggestive of a piano sonata of one hour's duration.

Of orchestral programs, perhaps the Edison Symphony orchestra, KYW, 9:30 to 11, comes first, due to its sheer beauty.

The orchestral program devoted to Brahms, W-G-N, 9:15 to 10, was exceptional.

The WEBH 5 o'clock twilight musicale was entirely an Edgewater Beach hotel orchestra concert. No difficulties at all in getting into a concert by this organization.

The Lyon & Healy concert, W-G-N, 4:30 to 5:30, was in a way peculiarly attractive by reason of the prominence of the flute solos, also the combination of this instrument with violin and piano, producing a tone of considerable quaintness.

BISHOPS HIDE AS MEXICO-CHURCH CONFLICT GROWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mexico City, Oct. 31.—With the church-state conflict beginning its fourth month today, the Catholic archbishops and bishops in all parts of Mexico were taking to cover, fearing the threat of imprisonment for making seditious propaganda.

The uprisings in the states of Oaxaca, Guanajuato, and Durango are attributed to the Catholic clergy. The most formidable of these revolts is in the state of Oaxaca.

About 5,000 Canaqueños have flocked to the banner of Gen. Ferando Gómez, former chief of staff under the late President Porfirio Diaz. He is a sympathizer with the church cause.

This is the SALE OF COATS Highly Distinguished in Fashion At Prices Far Below Usual

A NOTABLE sale. In its scope it includes coat modes for every type of woman. Every coat is so perfectly designed in its combination of fabric, color, line and fur that it attains the distinction of a highly individual fashion.

Here are the new effects in yokes, the blouses, the wrappy set-in sleeve, manipulated fabric inserts, the inverted side panels—those features which mark the coat successes of the season. As to quality, its thorough excellence is evident. Furs are those especially smart—caracul, wolf, beaver, squirrel, badger, fox.

CARDINALS FALL BEFORE GREEN BAY, 3-0

IT SEEMS ONLY
THE PRO SALARY
IRKED TILDEN

For Pyle Says Bill
Was Interested.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Oct. 31.—Mr. C. C. Pyle, the eminent wolf who has been raiding the sheep fold of amateur tennis and gnawing at the very vitals of

amateur sport as

Mr. One Eyed

Connelly would say, today curled

his lip in the impetuous manner of the wolf when annoyed, and made the accusations

against the prisoners of the American flock, Mr.

William T. Tid-

den, the Second

Customary

Sunday afternoon

rain had just moistened the Yankee stadium where Mr. Red Grange and a number of other apostate amateurs were to have played a game of professional football under Mr. Pyle's authority and he may have been feeling unusually hostile at the moment: to ward the amateur school of athletics which played to such heavy business in fair weather only 24 hours before.

The Cash Was Short.

Taking up the matter of Mr. Tilden's recent renewal of his vows to the United States Lawn Tennis association, the vandal promoter said Mr. Tilden's devotion was for hire only a short time ago and he went on to report that Mr. Tilden remained an amateur only because Mr. Pyle wouldn't pay him as much as he asked to be a professional.

In announcing the extension of his lease to that field of athletics which piques the eminent journalists over night but shuns the vulgar wages of competition, Mr. Tilden admitted that he had remained an amateur because he wishes to help recover the national singles championship which was carried over to France this year. Furthermore, he was quoted as saying that he repudiated the vandal Pyle by telling him that he would not turn professional for twice what Mr. Pyle offered.

"I am much pained," Mr. Pyle said, "to detect a disparity between Mr. Tilden's version of the matter and my own. Knowing my own version to be correct, I am constrained to believe that Mr. Tilden's version must be erroneous, not to say the opposite of the truth."

Approach to Tilden.

"The truth is that last summer, before I went to France to engage the services of the famous player, Suzanne Lenglen, I called on Mr. Tilden. As you know, Mr. Tilden has been something of an amateur, and when I went to him he was about to produce his second show. He told me that if I would pay him $7,500 for a one-fourth interest in the show he would become a professional tennis player under my management."

Mr. Tilden did not want a share of his show, but would see him later. I waited until long after the amateur tournaments in this country had been finished before approaching Mr. Tilden again. In fact, I waited until after I had engaged Vincent Richards.

"As you doubtless have heard, Mr. Tilden was then an ex-champion, having taken what we term a 'soak' on the chin in the national amateur tournament. As you doubtless know further, ex-champions are generally quoted at 10 cents the dozen and no goods sent on approval."

Seeks to Regain Title.

"Mr. Tilden said to me: 'If any of the boys had won the championship of America this year, I would have been on your doorstep. But I do not think I am through as a tennis player.'

I said 'No.'

"Mr. Tilden said, 'I have a peculiar feeling that I ought to win back the championship for the United States next year.'

"I said, 'That is a fine feeling, but it won't buy any bread and butter.'

"Mr. Tilden said, 'If I should win the championship next year I would be worth more than ever as a professional, would I not?'

"I said, 'No, or 'Hell, no!' I am not sure which. 'We need you now, Mr. Tilden, for your professional tennis will be appreciated.'

"Then Tilden said, 'I'd like to know what you would offer me if I were to consider becoming a professional tennis player now.'

So Pyle Bars Tilden.

"I replied, 'I am not making offers but to pass the time I would not make an offer to a man who was not interested.'

"Mr. Tilden, then said, 'I am interested.'

"So I made him an offer and he said he would want twice that much. I told him I wouldn't pay that much. I already had Richards. In other words, Mr. Tilden stated his mind and I turned him down."

"Then Tilden said, 'I'd like to know what you would offer me if I were to consider becoming a professional tennis player now.'

SHAW'S 73 MILES AN HOUR SPEED WINS AUTO RACE

Six Cars Finish in Long Grind at Hawthorne.

BY J. L. JENKINS,

Wilbur Shaw, latest recruit in the ranks of American Automobile association race pilots, brought Chicago's rejuvenated dirt track speed season to a climax yesterday by winning the 100 mile race at Hawthorne and shattering the track record before 3,000 shivering fans. His time was 81 minutes 56.1 seconds and his speed average was 73.5 miles an hour.

DUTCH BAUMAN. fourteen fast cars entered, was run without a serious accident, but narrowed down to six cars and pilots at the finish, with Eddie Burkhardt's Frontenac skidding into the pits in flames at the end of his fifty-sixth lap. Burkhardt's pit crew bathe the flames with fire extinguishers while the pilot held to his seat and kept the motor spinning. He pulled out across the starting line the moment the fire was out and finished in third money.

Shaw Pilot Fronty-Ford.

Shaw, who has been a favorite on the "outlaw" tracks about Chicago and qualified for the A. A. A. championship sanction on Saturday, drove his Fronty-Ford to a victory in the race at Hawthorne and battered Louis Schneider, in a Boyle special, for the first ten miles when Schneider was forced to the pits and Shaw set the pace. He held the lead throughout and finished two laps ahead of the field.

D. D. MORRIS. in a Rajo special, drove into second place. His time was 87 minutes 37.2 seconds, and his average 71.89 miles an hour. Burkhardt, who figured in the major fire and who came through a second duel with "Dutch" Bauman after the two had whirled around the turns and battered over the straight of way for third and fourth place, finished in 88 minutes 35.1 seconds, with an average of 68.61 miles an hour. The best man of the day was turned by Bauman in 46.2 seconds.

Woodbury Forced Out.

Fans found their only disappointment in the hard luck which followed Ollie Woodbury, the Chicago favorite, and the front drive Miller racer and the East Miller entered by Harry Kohlert, Geneva, sportsman. Woodbury pulled into the pits in the third lap with a broken connecting rod, but took over Kohlert's car in the thirteenth, only to pull out of the race again with ignition trouble.

E. PHILLIPS. in a K-4 special, was awarded fourth place, Frank Briscoe, in a Clemmons, was fifth, and Carl Macchese, in a Rajo, was sixth.

—Glorious Autumn Days beckon you

In the foothills of the Cumberlands, in southern Indiana, French Lick and West Baden are aglow with gorgeous foliage gleaming in the sunshine. "Great Weather" should be the rule until well toward Christmas.

This makes golf, horseback riding, tennis, hiking and other outdoor sports all the more delightful. Added to all these are the social entertainments in the evenings at each of the great hotels.

Business men, social leaders and others who live under a certain physical and nervous strain find relief and restoration in a visit to French Lick or West Baden. The famous waters, and special treatments when required, are potent in their efficacy to rebuild the rundown system.

Turfmen Quit Camp; Off to Winter Tracks

BY FRENCH LANE.

The regulars of the western turf, after six months around Chicago, where they watched the thoroughbreds test their speed and stamina for 10 racing days, are either on their way to winter tracks today or looking for car fare to carry them in that direction.

They were breaking camp at Aurora yesterday and the Fox river valley course, where the season closed Saturday, will be deserted in a few more days. A special train carrying 10 racing horses and drivers pulled out this morning for Tin Juan, Specials to New Orleans and Cuba will depart early this week and Cuba will depart Saturday.

And what of next season? The racing is asking that question.

And hope to Legalize Betting.

That an attempt will be made to place the sport under state control with pari-mutuel betting legalised at the coming session of the legislature is a certainty. If the bill should pass it would pave the way for the building of at least one and possibly two other tracks in the Chicago and the eastern center of the world.

Even if a racing bill is not passed, Chicago may become the leader. Already Lincoln Fields is planning a season that will eclipse the successful opening of the track. Washington Park probably will open again, but probably in the hands of a new management. Aurora already is making ambitious plans and the same is true at Hawthorne.

That an attempt will be made to place the sport under state control with pari-mutuel betting legalised at the coming session of the legislature is a certainty. If the bill should pass it would pave the way for the building of at least one and possibly two other tracks in the Chicago and the eastern center of the world.

Even if a racing bill is not passed, Chicago may become the leader. Already Lincoln Fields is planning a season that will eclipse the successful opening of the track. Washington Park probably will open again, but probably in the hands of a new management. Aurora already is making ambitious plans and the same is true at Hawthorne.

And what of next season? The racing is asking that question.

And hope to Legalize Betting.

OHIO STATE GAME DISPELS GLOOM FROM MIDWAY

Improved Maroon Eleven
Eyes Future Tilts.

Disappointment no longer pervades the Midway. Maroon students and alumni have risen out of the despair which seized them following the 27 to 0 disaster to overcome their football team. Pontiacans, and with increasing interest are watching the Maroons as they improve day by day and game by game, until the hope which is never lost to followers of a team, begins to make them wonder when the Maroon machine will reach the climax in its gradual rise, and win another game.

The Maroons may not beat Illinois this Saturday, nor Northwestern or Wisconsin the following week, but after the fine bracing in the Purple game, the great stand taken in the first half against Ohio State, Chicago fans are calling for a victory over one of the three.

Maroon Fans Satisfied.

Maroon fans never deserted the team. They may have been disheartened by the difficulty of the Chicago schedule and the appalling lack of material with which the coaches had to work, but their appreciation of Stagg's victories has led them to consider the defeatine inevitable, and the Maroons gradually improved after the setback at Pennsylvania. Purdue and Ohio. The team was vaporous at Philadelphia, but it seriously threatened Purdue and surprised the Willems, when it lost creditably to a far more experienced machine. But Illinois is another game, say the Midway rooters, and the Maroons will be better prepared.

Kyle Anderson will be ready Saturday to lead deception to the Maroon fans for the Illinois game. The Maroons, and, in addition, he can count on 75 around in the open field the any other member in good standing of the triple threat men's union. He was sorely needed when the Maroons had their chance for a touch-down against the Buckeyes Saturday. Midway Line impermeable.

Midway fans also point out that the Maroon line learned a lot watching Bill Klein and Urdill of Ohio open holes through them, so much, perhaps, that they may try a little hole opening themselves against Illinois.

There's no disappointment at the Maroon over the Ohio game. The Maroon fans started to die and proceed rapidly. They may not reach the heights in their remaining games, but even that does not bother the Maroon fans who already are talking about next year, when only Marks and Rouse and McKinney will be missing, and one of the best Freshman squads seen at the Midway in years will be ready to test their mettle as varsity men.

NO PURPLE CASUALTIES

For the first time this season Train of the Purple, yesterday made no Sunday visit to the Northwestern university football team, but the Maroon team gymnasium to administer to the immediate needs of ailing athletes. None of the squad of forty was in need of attention. All came through the Indiana game Saturday with nothing but minor hurts.

Rud. Schuler, left tackle, the only serious casualty of the Notre Dame game of the week before, reported that his injured leg was responding to treatment rapidly. He probably will be used Saturday against Purdue in the Purple's homecoming encounter.

C. F. Adams, 2016 West 67th street, was winner yesterday, with his model yacht, Tetrach, in the annual miniature yacht race staged by the Oden Park Yacht Club.

Of the fourteen other entries, all trim, neat little craft, over the lagoon in Ogden park, 67th street and Racine avenue, the Caledonia, commanded by R. McGinnis, came home second, and the Bluebird II, of Robert White, was third.

Thomas Drysdale acted as referee, W. M. Collins, director of the park, was in general charge.

Three Cushion Billiard League Starts Play Today

The local National Three Cushion Billiard league will get under way today. The games are to be played at the Kleckhoffer's recreation parlor and Casino room. In the afternoon John Scanlon, representing Milwaukee, will engage Leonard Kenney at Kleckhoffer's, while in the evening Allen Hall will meet Charlie Le Gros at the other parlor.

All-Nations Trounce Lawdene Tigers, 3-0

The All-Nations indoor baseball squad marked up its sixth triumph in a row when it beat the Lawdene Tigers, 3 to 0, yesterday at the Dvorak gym. Pitcher Froelicher of the All-Nations, besides tanning twenty, held the Tigers to a single blow, a single to center by Rokus in the eighth.

Dvorak Reds Win Indoor Game from N. A. C., 13-9

The Dvorak Park Reds indoor baseball team yesterday defeated the Northwest A. C. 13 to 9, on their home floor. It was a free hitting engagement, featured by the playing of the Reds' shortstops, Javor and Havelin. Becker and J. Jasper collected four hits apiece.

MOON MULLINS—HOW EMMY MAKES MARRIAGE A SUCCESS

In the WAKE of the NEWS

DO YOU REMEMBER WAY BACK WHEN:

THE old force of city directory canvassers assembled every spring for class instruction or second hand of old Lakeside building, Clark and Adams, now being razed?—J. P. T.

We had home-made meat soup, and home-made bread, and home-made sauerkraut, and home-made pies, and home-made sausage (there day are gone but not forgotten)!—Friend Bat.

If one girl incurred of another where she got her new dress or hat the latter would reply sharply, "I sold rotten eggs and bought it!"—A. G. B., Blooming, Wis.

All us children were scrubbed every Saturday night by mother in the sitting room before the base burner, and then we crawled through the cold halls and up the steps to the feather bed?—"Home," Waterloo, Ia.

Older sister, in combing our hair while getting us ready for school, dipped the comb in a glass of water on the stand table and half the water rolled down our foreheads when she wet our hair?—Springfield, Ill.

People tied their horses and carried their whips to keep the whips from being stolen! (For two weeks people here locked their boats and carried their oars when calling?)—L. D. T., Beardstown, Ill.

The dummy train on Cottage Grove avenue started south from Oakwood boulevard and we kids jumped on and stole a ride?—T. C. K.

You had an apple at school and the other kids said "Fee-fa," ate the core?—C. J. Z., Fort Madison, Ia.

One of two illustrations was a part of "The Wake" daily (Look better that way. Wonder what the other Helpers think?)?—J. O. M., Elgin, Ill.

Men were scrubbed with the popular "bulldog" toes?—Dona Benn, Dugout, Ill.

A bungalow was called a cottage?—J. E. M.

In 1909 one of the verses of the "Yankee Man" was like this:

In the theater nowadays
Every girl takes off her hat;

But it doesn't help a bit;

'Cause you can't see 'round her ruff!

—Bogart Bob.

Men were paper dickers instead of a white shirt when they dressed up?—P. O. N., Marion, Ill.

We kids yelled "Fried rate and picnickers are good enough for Democrats"?—Albali Ike.

On nights when the moon was full the old street lampighter with his little ladder and torch took a vacation?—Nahaman.

We sang:

Do, do my huckleberry, do,

Be careful what you do, do,

You'd better be on your neighbors,

For you're the huckleberry do, do you,

Do, do my huckleberry, do,

Be careful what you do, do,

You'd better do your neighbors or they'll all do you?

Hill Battles Sangor in Ring Show Tonight

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois pheasant hunters will be able to unlimber their guns next week as the Illinois state shoot to be shot in this state from Nov. 10 to 15, inclusive. The bag limit for this season is the same as last year, 2 cock birds a day and not more than 6 in your possession during the open season.

According to reports from various parts of the state the gay colored feathers strangers in our coverts have had a good season and as far as we have been able to determine there is no scarcity of birds. In fact these introduced ring necks that thrive where quail and prairie chickens have a hard time of it, seem to be gathering in many parts of the Mississippi valley.

In the vicinity of Chicago the feathered visitors are taking as many as 125 pounds.

Fans expect the fight to terminate in a knockout. Hill is the hardest hitter of any of the Filipinos who have earned fame and money in the ring in this country. He is strictly a right hand puncher, but he hits with the power of a middleweight.

HILL CAN NOT TAKE PUNISHMENT.

Hill, however, can not take a punch. He has a "glass chin" and if Joey connects with his short right hook or cross, the Filipino may take the count.

Sangor is eager to win the bout and will try for a knockout from the first bell. Joey is an aggressive boxer, as fans who saw him in his bout with Charley Phil Rosenberg at the Madison Garden last Saturday night also showed his prowess in the north side park where he clashed with Billy Humphries. Both windup fighters are in excellent condition.

Good Supporting Card.

Promoter O'Keefe has arranged an interesting card of supporting bouts which will bring together Harry Hibbert and Joe Sullivan, Jim Savage and Battling Kavanaugh, Jackie Conway and Steve Adams, Snake Agumal and Side Johnny Hill, and Joey Pat and Sonny Lloyd.

The show will open at 8:15 o'clock.

Promoter Jim Munson, who will stage the world's middleweight championship bout between Tiger Flowers, the title holder, and Mickey Walker in the Coliseum on Dec. 2, will announce the supporting card this week. The champion and challenger will be in Chicago to complete preparation at least ten days before the contest.

Jackie Conway of Minneapolis and Tommy Irvine of Kansas City meet in the windup of the first boxing show to be conducted by the C. A. A. in the Cherry Circle club's gymnasium on Saturday night. Battling Morris of Omaha and Morris Gransburg of Chicago clash in the six round semwindup which will be supported by three other bouts.

CALL ON FRENCH TO OPEN HOMES FOR LEGION MEN

Officials and Poilus Map
Reception of Yanks.

BY LANSING WARREN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 31.—With the return of the Fleet from the United States, where he went as the French envoy to the American Legion convention, the French veterans are starting a far-reaching propaganda campaign to induce the French Legion members such a reception at next year's Legion convention here as to make them forget all the unpaid bills, rates of exchange, and other unpleasant topics.

The government is supporting this movement strongly in the belief that an impression on Legionnaires will be a powerful factor thereafter in influencing the United States to make every effort to prevent petty pilfering by tradesmen and hotel proprietors of which the Yankees complained during the war. Extreme pressure will be brought to bear to induce the popular to take the former soldiers into their family circles and make them comfortable without charge, such as the Germans "welcomed the wives" just after the armistice, and which so pleased the Americans in the Urge French to House Yanks.

Jacques Pichard, representing the older organization, today issued a call to 10,000 families of former French Legionnaires to open their homes to Legion delegates next fall.

"Recently the American Legion has shown it preserves in the hearts of American veterans their comradeship for the French," he said. "How much better show our gratitude for the Legion's friendship than by opening our homes to them?"

It has been suggested that the gates can be housed easily if the rooms prepared for the thousands of visitors who failed to arrive for the 1924 Olympic games are refurbished and offered to the Legion men. At the same time, hundreds of French families, hoping for big profits from the foreign boarders, have many guest rooms, including baths, and so forth, and many were disappointed as a result of the small attendance.

Seek 10,000 as Guides.

The Paris post of the American Legion also is advertising for 10,000 French soldiers capable of serving as guides and interpreters both in Paris and on the battlefield. It is offering expenses plus 50 francs (about $1.50) daily for the services. As a result, hundreds of former poilus are studying English, raking out dictionaries and looking up on historic war operations to enable them to get the job.

The Paris post will meet Friday for the first big session to outline the convention reception plans.

CHINESE ASK U. S. TO HELP SCRAPP BELGIAN TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 31.—The veritable press, the chamber of commerce, and other public bodies are emphasizing news from Brussels that Belgium is deporting Chinese students due to the recent rioting in the Belgian capital in connection with the Chinese al-tempt to abrogate the Sino-Belgian treaty. The Chinese demand that the Peking government lodge a strong protest and immediately abrogate the Sino-Belgian treaty, which they say is unfair.

The press says Gen. Sun Chuan-fang, the military commander of the Chinese, is here, but has no influence to bear on the Peking government for the abrogation of the Belgian treaty, asserting: "The Belgians must yield to Chinese opinion if the Chinese desire a continuance of the commercial relations with China."

The Chinese chamber of commerce yesterday petitioned the American minister, John Van A. MacMurray, who is visiting here, for American help to induce Belgium to revise the treaty provisions pertaining to tariff and the extraterritoriality.

By vote of 2020 to 354 the Chicago Bar Association endorsed for re-election,

JUDGE HENRY HORNER

Democratic Candidate for Probate Court Judge

The Saturday Evening Post:

"As an example of business administration, the Cook County Probate Court will stand comparison with the largest corporations in the country."

Chicago Bar Association:

"On his record as Judge of the Probate Court for the past twelve years, he deserves re-election. He is exceptionally well qualified for the office."

Chicago Tribune:

"Judge Henry Horner has been in this office since 1914 and has drawn attention nationally to the methods of handling estates, the reforms which he has brought about, the conservation of small estates, particularly those of soldiers."

"Judge Horner has found the highest satisfaction of his career in building up this court to the point where it is considered a fine achievement in social welfare."

Chicago Daily Journal:

"Probate Judge Henry Horner, a candidate for re-election, is one of the ablest public officials this county ever had the good fortune to elect."

Chicago Daily News:

"The excellent record of Henry Horner, Democrat, entitles him to re-election as Probate Judge."

Chicago Evening Post:

"Judge Horner merits the hearty support of all good citizens because of his admirable record as Judge of the Probate Court."

Chicago Herald-Examiner:

"Among those who know Judge Horner, the reports indicate, he is considered one of the ablest jurists and all-around scholars in Chicago; and confidential information is that the people look kindly on him because of his care in protecting widows and children in handling estates. His courtesy was given as another reason for the popularity he appears to enjoy. In the bar primary he received the highest vote of all the candidates for judicial positions."

GRAINS BEARISH, TRADERS BELIEVE FOR THE PRESENT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Action of grain prices last week was the reverse of the previous week, with a bearish sentiment at the close, with more liquidating and a larger short.

Traders who have favored buying grain in expectation of a Republican victory in elections on Tuesday apparently weakened and were disposed to even up. With these conditions and a light general speculative interest it was easy to increase prices. The finish was at the lowest of the week, and on corn and wheat futures about the lowest of the session.

Closing trades on wheat as compared with last week showed losses of 3¢/b; corn, 5¢/b; oats, 5¢/b; and rye, 4¢/b.

Wheat prices at the lowest were 58¢/b under the high point of the previous week. A week ago it looked to many in the trade as though the markets would be better, while at the close last Saturday sentiment was about as bearish as one could possibly imagine.

For the present and immediate future the important determining factors are the farm freight situation, which is dependent largely on the British coal strike, and the weather and crop news from Argentina.

There has been frost in Argentina and a few reports of rust. Reports as to damage are indefinite, and the traders are disposed to go slow in placing too much confidence in Argentine news at the time being. They assume that recent favorable crop reports are to be considered as small. Chicago experts, who are on the way to that country, have an opportunity to investigate, and it is expected that they will be there within a week.

The Canadian situation is a factor that cannot be ignored. Farmers in western Canada are estimated to have sold close to 100,000,000 bu of wheat so far this season, or about the same as last year. The Canadian pool was said to be shipping wheat freely from Port Arthur and rates from that port to Buffalo on Saturday, and reported at 2¢ a bushel a few weeks ago. At the same time Whistling messages said that vessel men were refusing to take shipments to some eastern ports as they are becoming congested.

This is an important feature of the wheat situation, and combined with the shortage of elevator storage room has a tendency to make buyers cautious. At the same time there is a fear of a general glut in the market, and a number of dealers of wheat by strong interests, and that millers have large holdings of December here and in the northwest bought against flour sales.

An eastern group or speculators who have been credited with controlling the wheat market here for some time was said to have sold out Saturday. Local professionals are in the main either bearish or out of the market as they want to see a larger export movement. The United States export movement last year was 1,000,000,000 bu of wheat and flour from this season's surplus and there is as much more that can be spared. For the twelve months last year total exports were 104,000,000 bu. Unless prices decline, it is not believed that exports for the remaining months of this year will be sufficiently large to absorb all the surplus.

December wheat closed Saturday at $1.09 1/4 10/16c; May, $1.45 1/4 15/16c; October under the previous week's high July 1/2. Prices for the week follow:

Drop Report on Corn Today.

Estimates in the corn crop based on harvest returns are due from the private crop reports. They expect to show a small increase to a mod erate reduction from figures given out last month. The government report in October estimates the crop at 2,800,000,000 bu, and average private estimates were 2,712,000,000 bu. Last year's crop was 2,905,000,000 bu.

As bad weather has delayed drying of corn in the fields, huskings have been delayed, and it is more difficult than usual to make a comprehensive report on actual yield. The average yield per acre as indicated by the October condition was 28.5 bu, against 28.6 bu harvested last year, and a five year average of 27.7 bu.

The trade estimates on farm reserves of old corn are unusually large. Last year they were 60,952,000 bu, and the largest since 1909 were 279,647,000 bu, in 1921. The crop at that time was 8,069,000 bu, while this year it is expected to be under 2,700,000,000 bu, with quality unusually poor.

More than 1,000,000 bu of corn were shipped off by lake from Chicago last week, the bulk going to foreign ports, and to Boston. There is more than 4,000,000 bu of corn available for loading in elevators here, with a limited consumer demand and little surpluses in elevator storage room.

guarantees adds to the fundamental strength of real estate mortgages and convenience in form, and makes possible a national distribution of the issues.

The Baltimore Trust Company excludes from its offerings the new type of bond now widely used to finance the construction of buildings to be erected at some time in the future—large, single-use structures, such as apartment houses, office buildings, etc. Mortgages on such properties are not old-fashioned mortgages in the sense in which that term is generally understood by individual residents, lawyers and individual investors.

All of the mortgages secured by Real Estate Bonds offered by the Baltimore Trust Company are of the old-fashioned type. The maximum average amount is $5,000,000 and less than 50% of the value of the properties, most of which are on a residence, invested on a completed property, and only for approximately half the value of the property.

In addition to the old-fashioned character of the mortgages secured by the Real Estate Bonds offered by The Baltimore Trust Company, these guarantees of principal and interest by the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, The National Surety Co. or similar surety companies acceptable to the Baltimore Trust Company. This

How to tell the difference BETWEEN THE OLD FASHIONED MORTGAGE AND A NEW TYPE OF FINANCING

SOME investors mistakenly assume that all real estate bonds are simply old-fashioned mortgages in modern form. Some of them are, but not all. And it is the old-fashioned mortgage, of course, which has earned the reputation of being just about the safest investment that money can buy.

The type of mortgage into which so many generations of conservative investors have placed their savings has several characteristics not present in many issues of real estate bonds, chief of which is that, with rare exceptions, it represents a loan of only a few thousand dollars, usually on a residence, invested on a completed property, and only for approximately half the value of the property.

The Baltimore Trust Company excludes from its offerings the new type of bond now widely used to finance the construction of buildings to be erected at some time in the future—large, single-use structures, such as apartment houses, office buildings, etc. Mortgages on such properties are not old-fashioned mortgages in the sense in which that term is generally understood by individual residents, lawyers and individual investors.

The 300 National Banks, State Banks and Savings Banks, and the thousands of individual investors who have purchased Real Estate Bonds offered by The Baltimore Trust Company, have all the protection of the old-fashioned mortgage, to which has been added the guarantee of principal and interest by one of the largest surety companies in the world.

SAYS STOCK COMPANIES EXAGGERATE EXTENT OF CASUALTY COMPETITION

Mutual and reciprocal competition has been dignified and enlarged out of all proportion to the merit of the problem which it creates to stock companies. E. Thieman of the Casualty Clearing house of Chicago stated last week before the meeting of Kansas trust agents at Lawrence.

In some states, stock companies and agents are actual and stock cover in long winded discussion and argument.

Such laws, he said, might properly be interpreted to mean uniformity of the insurance business by state insurance departments. This because the laws, generally speaking, are made for the protection of the policyholders and consequently against the company and agent.

The insurance commissioners, the companies and the agents all desire to be relieved of the burden of the various groups in the casualty field to show that the competition is not so forceful as has been believed.

Stock company agents in the state of Kansas in 1925 wrote 83 per cent of the automobile business and 84 per cent of the automobile premiums.

freely and consigning to terminal markets as they need room for the new crop, making an uncomfortable position as they have to accept around the low prices of the season, which is a strong argument in favor of the agricultural association of farm politicians, who seek congressional legislation to help the corn belt farmer.

The great indoor sport of darning a few good insurance commissioners, a few token ones, and the one or two who may not be so good would soon become a lost art. All would dwell in peace and harmony.

Savings for Policyholders.

Risk agents would benefit from the uniform law, Mr. Julian said, through elimination of the present complex agency requirements. Agency evils, such as excessive commissions and brokerage, would be wiped out, he prophesied.

Uniformity would come to the policyholder in form of a blessing, he added. Savings could be effected which would be passed on down in the form of lower premiums and larger dividends.

BLACK BUTTERFLIES

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Norma Maxwell, the wealthiest young woman in Grandon, brings upon herself the scorn of the town by her association with the Black Butterflies, a club made up of small outlaws. Her attorney, Orson Hatch, remonstrates with her and advises her to take a different line. Dorinda tells him that she will not give up the freedom that was denied to her before her marriage to David Goddard, his clerk, out to Dorinda's house with some papers that have his signature, and the hetress is impressed by the young law student.

Norma is worried by the gossip about herself and calls on Norma Davis, an old friend with the hope of keeping their friendship alive. Norma tells Dorinda that her son, Judge Davis, objects to their friendship. She asks Dorinda why she doesn't marry.

Dorinda gives her the same answer she gave to her attorney.

Later Dorinda telephones to Goddard and asks him to call at her house that night. She tells him to marry her, the arrangement to be strictly a matter of business. He refuses but she tells her he will do it. They are married quietly on the Saturday following "Last Year's" end of on a stormy day. Dorinda and David start back to Grandon until the roads are in better condition. They start out, each feeling bitterly angry over the Butterflies, hearing of the accident, come to meet her. A few days later they are back to Grandon together. Before they leave David tells Dorinda that they've got to make a new deal or a divorce.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

AN ENTICING PICTURE.

Notwithstanding a second protest from Dorinda, Kitty left the compartment and Bryant followed. Once lingged outside of the threshold, his bright eyes and throat around the door he had a sight for it. "I take them back to the baggage car," he said confidentially, "and when we can how louder than Freckles. I'm almost sure we can. Any way I'm going to find out. Freckles is getting a little tired. And, children, our famile face grinded at them implably—something tells me that for several days there has been a drop of gall in the honey—a little rift within the walls. Kiss and make up. That you may have ample opportunity to do so, I am locking the door on the outside. I will return anon, which in this instance seems an hour or two."

David sprang toward him at risk to the injured ribs, but they heard the key with Chad's final words and its withdrawal from the lock.

"The little wretch! I'll make him pay for this!" Dorinda cried, her dark eyes twisting with anger.

David sat down beside the couch and picked up a newspaper.

"How about a truce till our final decision," he suggested. "Let's get even with Chad by not letting him annoy us. Have you read this newspaper?"

"No." He could see that she was striving for self-control.

"Then I'll run through the headlines for you, and we'll see what's happened to other folks. I'm no platform reader, but I can manage to give you the news."

Chad, returning three-quarters of an hour later, in a somewhat contrite frame of mind, found a pleasant domestic scene awaiting him. The bride had

"Ask Kate to send up a big plate of sandwiches, please."

All asleep, and the bridegroom, slightly hours but still very much in the train, was reading in low and soothing tones the latest quotations of the Chicago stock exchange.

"I've read them half a dozen times," he admitted when released; "he stepped out of the steward's and joined Chad in the vestibule. " Didn't dare to stop for tea, but I did." Parker said it would do her a lot of good if she could catch a nap on the journey."

Chad nodded, inwardly relieved. As usual, his improved spirits found expression in a fountain of words.

"We had a great contest out in the baggage car, with the train crew as judges," he told David, as the two walked back to the latter's stateroom. "The general idea was to outdo Dorry's pup, and of course we all did that, so there wasn't much excitement. But we discovered that Jim could look like the pup than the pup looked like himself. By jove, if we had put him in the crate we could hardly have told them apart. We tried to, of course, and some of the crew helped us; but there wasn't room and Jim didn't fit himself properly to the experiment. Still the effort was worth while."

"After that," he went on with unconcern, "Kitty nipped my nose a little better than any dog ever done in the last lot of dogs have practiced on me. It was all quite a treat for the steward."

"It must have been," David grimly agreed. So they couldn't even take a nap without making an exhibition of themselves on the train. However, he was glad to infer that Bryant's spirits had revived. Chad read his expression and smiled smugly.

"The long, long day is o'er," he quoted. "We'll be in Grandon in twenty minutes, admiringly watched by half the populace as we get off the train. There's to be an ambulance for Dorry at the station, isn't there? And a steward for us to get her out?"

"We won't need any stretcher," David said shortly. "I shall carry her, of course."

Chad nodded again.

"You think of everything," he admitted. "That will look better. But how about your nose?"

"I'm glad you asked," David said. "I had quite forgotten his arm. That took some doing, too. It had been aching all day."

"There will be a doctor and nurse at the station with the ambulance," he said, still chafing his arm. "They'll see to everything."

The loungers in the Grandon station felt repaid for their long wait when they saw the town's model young man at the head of his bride's stretcher, supported by his uninjured hand, his share of the light burden, while the doctor and nurse and Bryant bore the rest. Indeed, the young bride was so moving that friends who had withheld judgment on his marriage, and others who had strongly expressed judgment on another in their efforts to get him, smiled with understanding, and Dorinda, whose countenance was calm, listened with a twisted smile to his cheerful and sympathetic inquiries.

He got into the ambulance with the patient and the new nurse and sat in the doctor's seat at Dorinda's feet, while that aged and slightly resentful gentleman hung precariously on the ambulance seat. At the house the little band of Dorinda's servants was waiting in the hall and the task of getting the stretcher upstairs and putting the new Mrs. Goddard to bed was accomplished under the interested eyes of Annie, the maid; Kate, the English cook, who efficiently helped in the transfer, and even Johnny, the outdoor boy.

"It's all so unnecessary," the patient protested. "I was perfectly able to do for the journey and to get off the train with a little help, and I didn't need an ambulance any more than I need wings. I really don't need a nurse, either." She giddily consoled him. "I'm perfectly all right, and I shall be as good as new in a day or two."

"Of course you will," Dr. Warren soothingly assured her. "But in the meantime the long journey was very trying, and Dr. Parker was right to take every precaution. Be good and stay in your room for a day or two of complete rest, and then you can do anything you like."

The members of the Butterflies parted from their hosts immediately at the urgent suggestion of the new nurse, whose name was revealed as Allen.

"Mrs. Goddard had a hard day," she severely reminded them, "and she needs complete rest."

"Something told me," Chad regretfully put it as he followed the procession downstairs, "that we wouldn't be expected to stay for dinner. But I suppose we must refresh ourselves at the sideboard on our way out, can't we, Goddard?"

David excused the guests to the dining room, gloomily telling himself that he had the caravansary garret. The picture of the third floor back in Mrs. Kamp's boarding house swung enticingly before him. From Chad's gossip at the hospital he had gathered that Mrs. Kamp missed him. Forgetting the taste of the four muffins she daily referred to him with a mother's interest, Mrs. Kamp was a physical sensation, affecting the pit of his stomach.

To Annie, who showed a determination to keep a steadfast eye on the members while the Butterflies were near the sideboard, he gave his first smile as master of the house.

"Ask Kate to send up a big plate of sandwiches, please," he suggested. "She can make them of anything she has."

He was rewarded by the intense enthusiasm of his hearers.

"I always said Goddard must have some redeeming quality," Chad proudly put out, "and here it is. It proves my theory that if we observe any one of us, we'll find out what he's like."

"When the sandwiches came Goddard left them to the Butterflies, whose funds, he knew, might not run to dinner. However, they did not mind this now. They would adjourn to Kitty's studio and smoke and talk half the night. In the meantime, he was actually glad they were Good Morning!

"'Whispering Wires'" is certainly nothing to shout out loud about.

I'm willing to believe that the story and play from which it was adapted were good. If so—conclu-se—cause the screen version is a lemon.

It has been heralded as a "baffling, laughing, thrilling mystery." It is not!

It's just a lumbersome, bunglesome, hodge-podge wished on an able cast, who struggle manfully with what must have been really hard to me.

This is one stupid, stupid film!

Wish I could throw away my ham-this morning for the ladies at play is another godawful picture.

It's silly. It's vulgar. It's tiresome.

It's full of boudoirs and pie-eyed spinsters and it's about a girl who must get married in three days if she's to inherit six million dollars.

For which information Yewkum!

See you tomorrow!

Actors' Annual Hospital Benefit Nets $12,000

More than $12,000, the largest amount in its history, was received from the sale of tickets for the 14th annual benefit for the American Theatrical Hospital association given yesterday at the Apollo, according to John J. Tamm, treasurer. The association maintains a floor at the American hospital at Irving Park boulevard and Broadway for disabled theatrical people. The benefit was under the direction of Chief Justice Joseph Sabath of the Superior court and Claude S. Humphreys and Harry J. Ridings. Practically all the stars playing in Chicago now took part in the program.

Walter Ayer to Bring His Family Back to Chicago to Reside

BY NANCY R.

Here's good news for the many Chicago friends of the Walter Ayers of whom we have had nearly enough news in the last few years, even though, in fact, they went to live in Madison, Wis. They are coming back to Chicago to take up what seems to be a permanent residence in this neck of the woods.

Mr. Ayer has sold his business in Madison, and their lares and penates will soon be transferred to our Windy City—I understand. They are to be at the Lake Shore Drive hotel for the winter, until they find just the house or apartment they want. Their two children, Janet and Robert McCormick, are away at school, but will probably be their parents' for the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Ayer is the former Jessie Kirkley.

Apres returns, Miss Elsie McCormick is here once again, after a long sojourn abroad. She has not opened her apartment at 220 East Walton since, and I hear that she isn't planning to. Just at present she's at the Ambassador, but she expects to take a room at the Fortnightly for most of her two months' stay in this part of the world.

Lunching at the Casino the other day, we looked extra smart in a trim, high collared and most colorful robe with a close fitting hat and a very nice of a little brownie hue. With this she wore heavy amber earrings and necklace—as some remarked, just a whiff of Paris."

She brings the glad tidings that Mrs. Eleanor Hall Winterbottom, who is now with her mother, Mrs. E. H. Hall in Morristown, N. J., is coming for a visit to Chicago late in November. She expects to spend a month with the Kellogg Fairbanks, and then divide the remainder of her time here among her other friends, of whom she has many.

Day's News in Society

From Los Angeles, Cal., come tales of the gorgeness of Miss Evelyn Walter Dupee's wedding to George Louis Castera, junior lieutenant of the United States navy, which took place on Oct. 16 at Coronado. Miss Dupee is the daughter of Mrs. F. Kennett Dupee, who formerly lived at the Ambassador hotel.

The navy colors, gold and blue, were used in the decorations. Coffered church walls were filled with great white and yellow chrysanthemums were tied with gold and blue satin bows and streamers.

The bride wore white duchesse satin with a röke of duchesse and rosepoint lace, and an imperial headdress also of lace.

Miss Colette Durand, cousin of the bride, is one of the attendants, who were all from western cities. The two matrons of honor wore gold cloth and gold lace, and the bridesmaids were in gold chiffon satin and velvet. The bride's brother, Walter H. Dupee Jr., escorted her down the aisle. A reception at Mrs. Dupee's residence took place after the ceremony.

Mr. Castera and his bride are motor-traveling California on their honeymoon and are to reside in Coronado after Nov. 15, during Mr. Castera's naval leave. The summer place at Lake Geneva last year, and have moved into town. Mrs. Crane resides at the Edgewater Beach hotel and the Mayflower 228 East Dearborn place. Mrs. J. R. Wilson of 43 East Division street has closed Sunset Ridge and shutters went up on the A. F. Gertie place, Glen Mary, this weekend.

Mrs. Warren Salisbury of 1100 Lake Shore drive is to give a dinner dance at the Saddle and Cycle club on Friday, Nov. 19, for her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Salisbury (Wilmot Eaton).

The Austin H. Niblacks and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Behr represented Chicago's smart horse owners at the Essex Hunt in New Jersey on Saturday. Mr. Behr's champion cup winner, Burgoright, was a participant in the race.

Mrs. Louis de Koven Bowen and Mr. B. F. Landry will give a tea today at 1 p.m. at the Women's City club in compliment to the pioneer women suffrage leaders of Chicago. Among the guests will be Miss Jane Adams, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Ella Stewart, Mrs. John Farwell, Mrs. Mary Nelson, Mrs. Estelle Ward, and Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch.

The opera box committee of the Friends of the Opera will hold its last weekly luncheon at the Arts club on Wednesday, with Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis as hostess.

Members of the Chicago Federation of Women's Organizations are to be guests. Morton Howard, Mrs. F. W. McWhinney, Mrs. Henry Rugg Rathbone, Joseph Birren, Mrs. Frank Carey and Miss Pauline Funk are to give a program of music and speaking.

Mrs. Jessie D. Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell closed El Nido, their summer place at Lake Geneva last year, and have moved into town. Mrs. Crane resides at the Edgewater Beach hotel and the Mayflower 228 East Dearborn place. Mrs. J. R. Wilson of 43 East Division street has closed Sunset Ridge and shutters went up on the A. F. Gertie place, Glen Mary, this weekend.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Coolidge will start tomorrow for Northampton, Mass., where both will cast their votes on Tuesday. They will be joined in the home of Mrs. Coolidge's mother, by their son, John Coolidge, who will go over from Amherst to have a short visit with his parents and grandmother, who lives in the Coolidge home in Northampton. Mrs. Coolidge yesterday afternoon attended the concert in the chamber music hall erected by Mr. F. C. Coolidge.

Dawes have both lent their names as patronesses for the annual Thanksgiving ball for the benefit of the Epilepsy Eyes, Ear and Throat hospital on Nov. 24 at the Willard.

Mr. and Mrs. Columbus Healey of Chicago, who have an apartment at Wardman Park hotel for the winter, have as guests for a few days the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Healey of Warrensburg, N. Y., and Mrs. Healey of Warrensburg.

Mrs. Edward Clifford will give the first of several luncheons this week for her debutante daughter, Miss Helen Clifford, whom she will present to society formally at a tea Nov. 27.

Mrs. James Shibley and her daughter, Miss Louise Shibley, departed yesterday for Chicago to visit the former's brother, William O. B. of Kenilworth. They will remain there until after the Army-Navy football game.

All the schemes you are simple and if they are followed bulbs can be forced by any one no matter where they live, if the temperature of the room where the flowers are kept does not go below freezing or high enough to smother a man.

FARM AND GARDEN BY FRANK RIDGWAY

"BURBANKED" BULBS BLOOM WHEN BLIZZARDS BLOW.

I've just been talking to a suburban flower grower who has the windows in his home filled with blossoms almost all winter long. Some of the things he told me about forcing bulbs in winter in his indoor flower garden I'm going to pass on to others in this department during the next few days.

He's a Burbank in handling bulbs.

With a dozen or two crocus, hyacinth, tulip and lily bulbs on a bench in his sunroom, he's able to force them in a week.

He sliced open two or three bulbs forced in fiber or soil, where they get additional plant food, while producing the sturdiest plants and best flowers.

"There are three ways to force bulbs—in water, fiber, and soil—and each way has its advantages," he said.

"Bulbs in water bloom the quickest,

but I need pots, dishes, bed clothes, runners, and a lot of time.

We'd be so happy if you could get these things for us.

Mrs. R."

Houswives, look on to your kitchens and see if there isn't a pot, or a pan, or some other household article

you can spare for this woman.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

"I have been sick for some time and am just able to be up and around. I have been invited to a Halloween party and need a costume, which I can't afford to buy. If some one has a Spanish costume or any other kind, size 12, for a girl, I'd appreciate having it.

E. F."

Have you the costume which is going to make this young woman's party one grand occasion? A remnant of some masquerade would probably be just what she wants.

Anxious to Make Money.

"My husband hurt his knee about three months ago and was out of work for some time. I have a large room I could rent for light housekeeping, but I need pots, dishes, bed clothes, runners, and a lot of time.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Northrop are in their new home at 44 West 53d Street.

Mrs. J. Low Harriman, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Moses Taylor, at Annandale Farm, Mount Kisco, has

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]

Many New York debutantes of the season will go to Boston for the ball which Prof. Charles B. Sargent of Harvard will give on Nov. 12 for his debutante granddaughter, Miss Natalie Potter, who is the daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel Bowditch Potter and the late Dr. Potter of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. St. George Broome

Tucker, who passed the summer in Madison, Conn., have returned to their home in Hewlett, L. I.

Mrs. Margaret Dittmar gave a luncheon for Prof. and Mrs. M. L. Baldwin, whose marriage to Stuart Major Spyrey will take place on Wednesday afternoon at the Ambassador.

Reward for Twenty Years' Honest Effort
Is—Divorce Court
BY DORIS BLAKE

Mrs. A. W. is 66. At 56 she married A. W., two years her senior. A divorce is pending. The wife does not want it. But A. W. has given women more to his mature liking—youth, of course, by a good many years. There have been no children born of the marriage, to the confessed grief of Mrs. A. W.

"No one, not even God, for I bagged him daily for years to send us children. Will ever understand how much I wanted them," she cries.

Now she is 44, the husband has met another woman, he wants a divorce and his chief complaint against his wife is her childlessness. He tells her, too, that she will get no alimony from him. He will go to a judge that does not believe in granting alimony to childless wives.

"Isn't life unbearably cruel, Miss Blake? The grief of my life he uses against me. I have been a good wife. I've never been a nagger. I've never been mean to him that I can conscientiously recall. You can believe it or not, but the money he got his start on was a $5,000 legacy of mine and I never threw that up to him. My reward for twenty years' honest effort is to have him turn aside to a younger face and a prettier one, and he is willing to do it without making any provision for me."

"What can a woman of my years, who has practiced only the duties of a home for twenty years, do to earn a decent living? I struggled for two years to hold out against the other woman, but I saw there was no use. She has him. Am I not entitled to some consideration? Would a judge consider my case as one undeserving of alimony?"

You tell that story to any judge in the land—tell it to the Brooklyn judge who first had the courage to come out and lambaste the alimony gold diggers, and if you aren't decently provided for the rest of your life, then I turn a riptapant balshevik, I do.

What a handsome picture to hang in a rogue's gallery that husband of yours would make! Let the other woman have him, and, moreover, if you ask for alimony, and insist that you yet trust your case in the hands of a good lawyer and let him interpret the laws of justice for you. Don't take the word of that cold-blooded ingrate of yours as any final interpretation.

Betas to Hear Elmer Stevens.
Elmer T. Stevens will address members of the Beta Theta Pi club at the Electric club, 30 North Dearborn street, tomorrow, at 12:30 o'clock luncheon. Mr. Stevens will talk on "Chicago's Traffic Problem."

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each child's saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge return of manuscripts contributed. Write on one side of the paper. Address Bright Sayings to Auntie Sue, The Tribune, Chicago.

Billy, 2½, was in the habit of climbing and getting into cupboards, shelves, and things. One day I came out into the kitchen just as he climbed up into a high cupboard.

Before I could say a word he exclaimed, "O, what am I doing up here? What am I doing up here?" E. K.

"Twas a gloomy, rainy October day. The baby had had the hiccoughs several times. I said, "My goodness, Robert, have you got the 'hicc' again?"

Marg, aged 3, turned from the window and said: "I hasn't got the 'hicc' but I has the 'ho-hums' awful bad."

JINGLETS

This Frock One Might Call Straight Laced

by Corinne Lowe

HAIRS.
NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Here is a new version of the straight laced girl: A suede belt drawn tightly across the hips and laced at each side represents a new trick of that leather girdle which is so dominant a feature of the tailored frock.

Today's model makes use of this belt to demonstrate that no style element has been omitted from its composition.

Executed entirely of beige silk, the dress sports a bolero jacket with a rolled collar.

The bolero jacket is absolutely plain, except for a belt which is finely pleated all around except in front, and this plain section produces the effect of a panel.

The finish at the neck and the three buttons in front simulate a vesta. A slight blousing of the upper section at the belt is the final touch given this smart little street costume.

This dress is an illustration of the popularity of the jacket theme as a means of developing the two piece idea without recourse to the familiar jumper blouse. Sometimes, however, the jumper is used in connection with the jacket. In this case, it may be sleeveless and serve the purpose of a vest.

One piece frocks for the street occasionally simulate the jumper model by the use of inset bands of embroidery at the hip line. A more original style was followed by one tailored dress which employed vertical tucks at each side.

This gave a fitted line at the hips and provided an opportunity for a slight blousing a little above the natural waist line.
